JUNIORS IN WAR EFFORT

Girl Guides of Canada Take Big Part In War Work And Set Example For Sticking To It

By MARIENNE IZASK
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Canadian Girl Guides are adapting their work to fit the necessities of wartime. No other war has demonstrated so clearly the need for response from every man, woman and child. Even the smallest seven-year old Brownie is not barred in this effort. In fact, the enthusiasm and eagerness of the younger children is often a clarion challenge to war-weary grown-ups.

A recent effort of English Guides to help bombed Britain is the instruction of bombed-outs in how to cook over a makeshift outdoor fire with little or nothing in the way of utensils. Older girls are studying fire prevention, ambulance work, A.R.P. work, motor mechanics and child welfare. Canadian Guides are following their English sisters along the same lines. Experiments in training of 15-year olds in caring for small children; outdoor cooking, A.R.P., signalling and other technique are features of the Guides' work at the present time.

For Self Reliance
Mrs. H. F. M. Hertsberg, provincial commissioner for Girl Guides of Ontario, remarked, "If any good comes out of this war, one of the advantages will be that children will be more self-reliant and responsible."

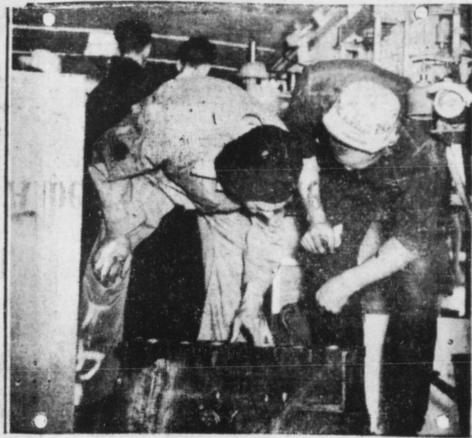

In November, 1940, the Canadian Guides Association started making clothes for children of the bombed-out areas in Great Britain as a national project. Since February, 1750 articles have been sent monthly to Girl Guide Headquarters in London for distribution.

Besides their own projects Canadian Guides are helping other organizations. They have knitted and sewn more than 20,000 articles of clothing for the Red Cross; have helped by cleaning Red Cross workrooms, running messages and serving tea to the volunteers. In some communities small Brownies have taken on household tasks as family mending in order to release mothers for war work.

Aid To Other Groups
Older Guides assist the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, and the Catholic Women's League as typists, chauffeurs and messengers. Hospitality is extended to war guests. Correspondence is encouraged with refugee children and they are sent picture books to help them in English.

The Girl Guides of the British Empire last year donated $222,200 of which Canada's contribution was $11,935. This money purchased for the forces two air ambulances, a motor lifeboat, five mobile canteens for the Y.M.C.A., 20 motor ambulances for the Royal Navy, a number of church huts and 56 "quiet rooms" where soldiers can rest, write letters home and hold church services.

A sergeant explains the structure of an engine block in an Army Mobile Machine Shop to a prospective recruit. Canada's new active army has much to interest and attract young men who are fond of machinery. To prove it, a convoy containing mobile machine shops and other mechanical units is now on tour in eastern Canada.

BUSY WHALE-BACKS

More than 1,042 cargoes of grain moved down Lake Superior since opening of navigation, carrying more than 215,000,000 bushels of grain.

BEAVERS ON WAR WORK

Seven beavers saved the Manitoba government $800 by building a dam just where engineers planned it on a creek near Lake Winnipeg.
