EDITORIAL

Canadian Industry . . .

Raymond Moley, writing in Newsweek, dilates on the effect of the war upon Canadian industry and what this may mean when the war is over. He quotes from Stephen Leacock to show that war activity often set in motion the machinery for post-war activity. Canada today was manufacturing her own airplanes, including engines, and she would be able to do this after the war. She was also making tanks, building ships, sending abroad trucks and cars and increasing her ability to manufacture not only war materials but articles that the world would need when the war was over.

Mr. Beatty's Dream . . .

President Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway for years had a dream of the two great railway systems being united. There were arguments in favor of it and against. Now it seems as if the dream may materialize. The British capital invested in the Canadian Pacific Railway will have to be liquidated if the liquidation has not already taken place. Britain needs all her money for the war effort. If the Canadian government is buying the British shares it will soon control the C.P.R. just as it controls the Canadian National. When they are both controlled by the same government it will be the easiest thing in the world to unite them. It will be done gradually but surely. It is just possible that the C.P.R. shares will be purchased by some person or corporation other than the government in which case the railway will remain an independent entity. Prince Rupert people generally will hope this is the case but it does not seem likely because C.P.R. shares are at present not paying dividends. If the railway is taken over by the Canadian government it will be paid for in war material.

The Democratic Method . . .

The delay of the United States Congress in passing the bills providing for loaning war supplies to Britain might be annoying were it not for the knowledge that already Britain is getting a tremendous amount of aid from that country and that the passing of the bill will not make much immediate change in that respect. The delay seems to be the price paid for democracy. The opposition has to be allowed to place its side before Congress, no matter whether we know it is inspired by the enemy or not. What really matters is that the administration has pledges from more than a majority of members of both houses that they will support the measure when it comes to a vote.

BIG ONE THAT DIDN'T GET AWAY

British Tommies are shown examining the remains of a big Junkers 88 bombing plane that crashed at Bishingham during a recent raid. This is just part of the ship—the tail end. Other parts of the bomber were scattered over a wide area.

USK HAS WEDDING

Miss Dorothy Stewart Becomes Bride of Constable R. E. Munkley

On Saturday last the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frederikkson at Usk was the setting for the nuptials of Miss Dorothy Belinda Stewart, daughter of the late Fred Stewart and Mrs. Roy Frederikkson of Usk, and Bulfour Edgar Munkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Munkley of Victoria.

For the ceremony, which was performed by Father Fabre, the home was decorated with pink and white streamers and evergreens.

The bride chose a dress of white taffeta with a full net skirt and with matching bolero. Her headdress was a full, trailing veil, embroidered, and with a band of lilies-of-the-valley. Elbow net gloves and a black and gold locket completed the ensemble. The bride's bouquet was composed of pink and white roses and fern.

Miss Peggy MacDonald of Smithers attended as bridesmaid, and wore a dress of pink net, with a full skirt, and the dress cut with sweetheart necklines. Her hat was flowered and had a veil bow at the back. Peach and pink net gloves were accessories and her bouquet was of pink and white carnations with fern.

For the occasion Mrs. Fredrikkson, mother of the bride, chose a [illegible] of mist crepe, with pleated skirt. Her corsage bouquet included carnations and fern.

Frank Gawan was groomsman and James Stewart, brother of the bride, acted as Usher.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the bride's home. The bride's table was decorated with pink candles and roses and centred with the three tiered cake.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Frank Gawan and responded to by Arthur Stewart, uncle of the bride.

Later in the evening a dance was given at Lee's Hall in honor of the happy couple.

Following this the bridal party returned to Terrace where they will make their home on Park Avenue.

Constable Munkley has been stationed at Terrace for about a year. He is popular and respected for his strict attention to his duties. Miss Stewart has grown up from childhood in Usk. She is a popular member of the younger set at that place.

KITWANGA CRUSADES

Visits of Church Army Groups Between Kitwanga and Kitwancool Are Exchanged

KITWANGA, Jan. 29. — The Church Army at Kitwanga and Kitwancool have been exchanging crusade visits and the visits have been successful and enthusiastic, accomplishing the objects of strength and uplift in these war days when faith is surely tried. Making the trip from Kitwanga to Kitwancool were Honorary Captains Henry Willagan and Paul Benson, Captain Solomon Bryant, Field Captain Fred Johnson, Lay Readers, James Fynn and M. H. Bright and others.

The Kitwancool crusaders, in addition to spending two days in Kitwanga, also visited Kitsegukla. They were given a splendid welcome by the Kitwanga people. The chiefs gave a welcome in the Church Army Hall where the meetings were held and there was also a banquet in the in the Community Hall. The programs were arranged by Harold D. Sinclair and the speakers were Chief Matthias Bright, Chief George De-wel-Laasp, Chief Henry Leib, Chief Wallace Morgan, Chief Charles Smith, Chief Joseph Williams and Chief Paul Benson.

The Kitwanga-Kitwancool crusades followed visits to Kitwanga by Envoy George Leighton and Captain Henry Prevost of the Salvation Army from Metlakatla and George Stewart, pastor of the Peniel Assembly at Kincolith. Both these visitors were accorded much hospitality here and there were special meetings, banquets and entertainments. Leighton and Prevost returned to Metlakatla while Stewart proceeded to the upper Skeena.

Kitwanga people are already making their plans for observance of the Easter season.
