THREE GENERATIONS OF TEARS IN WAR-TORN GREECE

Three generations of Greek peasants sit amid the ruins of thei: home after Nazi bombs had crashed it to bits. The youngest, terrified, is whimpering in his monther's arms. The grandmother so bs brokenheartedly. This picture is only one new epitome of the impact of war on civilians. The men suffer in the battlefields and the women and children at home in the Nazi type of all-out war against the people of the enemy country.
