While youth was necessarily the time when one rebelled against all forms of discipline, it was also the time when one chose one's ideals. All great reformers started in youth to preach their revolutionary gospel. Christianity had found its inception in youth, for Jesus. Peter, Paul and all the disciples were young men when they dedicated themselves to their great cause.

The speaker urged Canadian youth, in particular, to practise Christian self-discipline in order to preserve the Christian ideal of freedom which was the foundation of democracy.
