Katharine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story" Current Feature at Capitol Theatre

After an absence of more than two years, Katharine Hepburn returns to the screen in "Philadelphia, Story," hilarious version of her New York hit, which shows in the Capitol Theatre here for the first half, of this week. Co-starred with Miss Hepburn are Cary Grant and James Stewart.

Miss Hepburn plays the part of a young woman of high society who, having no toleration for human weakness, divorces her first husband. Cary Grant, because he did 1 not measure up to her idea of perfection. Her second choice is a stalwart man of the people, John Howard. Complications arise when Grant turns up for the wedding, bringing with him a reporter from a keyhole magazine in the person. of James Stewart who also falls for Miss Hepburn. This situation brings about whirlwind comedy as the. three men vie for the girl. There is a hilarious climax as Miss Hepburn's foot slips.

There is a notable supporting cast including Ruth Hussey, as Stewart's girl friend, Roland Young as Miss Hepburn's Uncle Willie; John Halliday and Mary Nash, as the parents, and Virginia Weidler as the Boys
