CANADA AND IRELAND.

There are two great landmarks in Canadian history. One was the winning of home rule for Canada, about sixty-five years ago. The other was the winning of home rule for Ontario and Quebec, through confederation, about forty-five years ago. Home rule for Canada was obtained after a tremendous struggle. The Canadian Reformers who fought for it were denounced as rebels. The first British governor who was willing to concede it was Bagot, who was hounded to death by men of the type of Sir Edward Carson, and died expressing the hope that history would vindicate his memory. It has done so. The second governor who favored home rule for Canada, Lord Elgin, was the most farseeing Imperial statesman of his day. He was mobbed, stoned and rotten egged by men who were misled by leaders of the Carson stamp. Under the same sort of leadership the Parliament buildings were burned down. There was much writing of the same sort as is now used to stir Ulster to rebellion. For instance, Lord Elgin quoted this from the attack of a Canadian newspaper on himself:

"When French tyranny becomes insupportable, we shall find our Cromwell. Sheffield, in olden times, used to be famous for its keen and well tempered whittles. Well, they make bayonets there now, just as sharp, and just as well tempered. When we can stand tyranny no longer, it will be seen whether good bayonets in Saxon hands will not be more than a match for a mace and a majority."

In spite of these demonstrations of violence, which Ulster is now urged to imitate, Canada did obtain home rule, with the result that all talk of rebellion and annexation vanished, and Canada became a loyal and contented part of the British Empire. Its only difficulty was that, although it enjoyed home rule within the British Empire, it did not enjoy Provincial home rule. Upper Canada and Lower Canada—now Ontario and Quebec—were tied together in a legislative union, and lived in the harmonious and friendly relation typified by the Kilkenny cats.

Confederation substituted a federal for a legislative union. It established Provincial home rule. By that means, not only was the quarrel between Ontario and Quebec settled, but the bond of union was made so elastic as to permit of the expansion of Canada, eastward to the Atlantic and westward to the Pacific.

No Canadian can oppose home rule for Ireland without ignoring or defying the lesson taught by the history of Canada and of every province of Canada. Our prosperity, our strength, our freedom are built upon a foundation of home rule. To use Canadian experience as an argument against home rule for Ireland is to ignore or defy the most striking lessons of Canadian history.

APPOINTMENTS TO THE RAILWAY COMMISSION.

In connection with the question of a successor to Judge Mabee, it is to be noted that the act provides that "each commissioner shall hold office during good behavior for a period of ten years from the date of his appointment." But "if a judge of any superior court in Canada is appointed chief commissioner of the board, he shall not be removed at any time by the governor in council, except upon address of the Senate and House of Commons." This provision of the law makes it desirable that the precedent established in the selection of Judge Mabee, and of his able predecessor, Judge Killam, should be followed, and that Judge Mabee's successor should be chosen from the bench.

The appointments of Commissioners Mills and Bernier were made on January 18, 1904, and their commissionerships will, therefore, expire in less than two years. Assistant Chief Commissioner Scott and Commissioner McLean were appointed in September, 1908; they have more than six years yet to continue in office. The salary of the chief commissioner is $10,000 per year, of the assistant chief commissioner $9,000 and of each of the other three commissioners $8,000.

MAROOED AT HOME

Scottish Island Cut Off from the World in Danger of Starvation.

Glasgow, May 27.—The Island of St. Kilda on the outer Hebrides has been cut off from the world for months. The Christmas mail has not been received there. The inhabitants, who number 80, were starving when the trawler Strathmore touched there as they only had a handful of flour left and their only resource was birds' eggs. The trawler's crew gave all they could from their own meagre stores and then reported the desperate plight of the islanders. The government is now sending help. First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill ordered the fleet to despatch a warship to the spot at once and the ship should reach there on Sunday.

HONEYMOON BY AIR

London, May 27.—A honeymoon journey by aeroplane is the program of Claude Graham-White, the English aviator, and Miss Dorothy Taylor of New York, according to an announcement made recently by friends of the engaged pair.

The trip will be undertaken on the day of the wedding, in June, should the weather be propitious. Though much depends on the wind, it is regarded as probable that the honeymoon will be over the channel, with a descent near Paris.

Miss Taylor is the daughter of Bertrand L. Taylor, a naval constructor, of 784 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan. Her betrothal to Graham-White was announced April 19, when she was leaving Paris for London. Her aviator sweetheart has at different times been reported engaged to Miss Eleanor Sears of Boston, the fiancée of Harold Vanderbilt; to Miss Marie Campbell of New York, and to Pauline Chase, the "pink pajama" actress.

REPORT OF ENGINEERS ON WATER SUPPLY

Citizens Officially Informed of the Situation and Necessity for Care Indicated Without Need for Alarm---Report Adopted

To the chairman and members of the Waterworks Committee: Gentlemen—I beg to report on the supply of water at the present time.

It was necessary to start the Morse Creek pump on May 10th, to help out the gravity supply, and since that time the gravity supply has been too small to be of any practical service. About ten days ago the flow over the waste weir of Morse Creek dam ceased and since that time the supply has been taken from the Morse Creek reserve, the level of the water falling 18 inches. On the 22nd May, the Morse Creek pump was stopped and the gasoline pump at Hays Creek started. The level of the water in Morse Creek dam is now slowly rising. The draught from Hays Creek exceeds the amount coming in, and as the reserve in Hays Creek is very small it will be impossible to continue for very long to obtain the entire supply from this source.

I estimate the daily water consumption at 300,000 gallons, and the inflow to the Morse Creek dam 150,000 gallons.

So long as the monthly rainfall keeps up to the minimum rainfall of which we have a record, viz., 3.67 inches, in August, 1911, there will be sufficient water for all purposes, but so far in May there has only been two inches, while in May, 1911, the monthly rainfall was 4.53.

One thousand tons of cast iron pipe have been shipped and should reach here early in June. With this shipment is sufficient 18 inch pipe to extend from Shawatlans Passage to the corner of Frederick street and Eleventh Avenue.

The steel pipe for the section from Shawatlans Lake to Shawatlans Passage should reach here before the end of June. The flexible jointed pipe for the submarine work will be in the next shipment. By having this flexible jointed pipe shipped by rail across the continent six weeks would be gained in the time of delivery and enable the completion of the line from Shawatlans Lake to Eleventh Avenue, where a temporary wood pipe line 1000 feet long could be laid to connect with the existing 3 inch wood pipe on 8th Avenue. I do not consider, however, that this would be of much advantage for it would be of no use for fire protection on account of the small sized existing main. It would, therefore, be impossible to move the Morse Creek pump and a new pump would be necessary to procure which would require considerable time and money.

Under the circumstances, if rain does not come, in my opinion the best course to pursue is to continue pumping from Hays Creek as long as the supply will permit; when this source is exhausted pump from Morse Creek. When the level of the water in the Morse Creek dam is 2 inches below the crest the use of water should be curtailed, first by pumping only at night, and if the dry weather continues it may even be necessary to restrict the time of pumping to two or three hours per day.

This restriction of the use of water will cause more or less inconvenience to manufacturers and others, but it may not be possible to avoid it, and by adopting prompt and strict measures to economize the reserve of water, any suffering by the consumers for want of water will be prevented.

In order to protect the source of supply on both creeks from pollution, I would recommend having this district parolled for a time by the police.

Respectfully submitted,
W. MAHLON DAVIS,
City Engineer

ONLY A BOY

When He Was Married and Now Quinn Wants a Divorce.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—Howard T. Quinn, 23, sued Anna Belle Quinn today for divorce.

"I was playing marbles in the streets of Cincinnati one day when my wife, then twice a widow and a woman of 20 years my senior, called me into her home and fondled me," said Quinn. "I was but 12 years old at the time and didn't realize what it meant. Later she brought me to Indianapolis and through her brother, who swore that I was of age, secured a marriage license for me. We were married when I was just 13 and 4 months old.

"We went to live at a place conducted by my wife's sister-in-law, Mrs. William Mohler, also known as Christina Wardrobe. I was forced to do all the flunky work. I didn't understand my surroundings. I have since held several good positions, and I want a divorce."

The woman, who is much older than Quinn, did not testify.

Service Must Speak

A STORE is almost human. It is full of temperament. It affects each customer with the composite personality of its management and staff.

There are stores and stores. There are "grouchy" stores and "smiling" stores. There are flip-pant stores and dignified stores. And the peculiar thing about each is that the goods or the prices have little to do with the store's temperament. It is the personality of the store that colors and defines the character of the goods from the customer's view-point and wins or repels approval.

Stores that honestly try to serve their customers best simply can't help advertising. It is the way of human nature that when we have spent the best of our brain power and physical and financial resources in building up something worth while, our enthusiasm bursts forth into publicity. We simply cannot restrain the desire to tell others about it.

The temperament or personality of a store is vividly expressed in its face. The face of a store is its advertising. You can judge a store by its advertising the same as you can judge a man by his facial expression.

In the long run, service is what you pay for, always. The goods, as goods alone, are incidental. Service implies quality, fair prices, safe treatment, and honesty in every detail of every transaction.

The service store is the "serving" store. It is also the honest-advertising store. By this, you may know it always—anywhere.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or through the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.
