He Lives Because of Pacific

In a letter from a mother who says she had despaired of getting her boy over his first critical months because no food seemed digestable.
When the doctor prescribed Pacific Milk she tried it but with little faith—"but almost at once I realized a turn had come." Today he lives because of Pacific Milk she believes.

Whifflets From The Waterfront

Labor Day morning saw the waterfront busy at Prince Rupert with quite a line-up of coastal ships strung out along the docks. C. P. R. steamer Princess Louise, Capt. S. K. Gray, was at the government wharf from 9:30 until 11:30, being on her way from Vancouver to Skagway. She had on board 209 passengers of whom 31 disembarked here, five going north from Prince Rupert. Southbound Saturday she will have a capacity list. Right after the Louise arrived the C. N. R. steamer Prince Rupert, Capt. Neil McLean, southbound from Skagway to Vancouver, which sailed at 4 p.m. She had 212 passengers of whom five got off here. The Union steamer Catala, Capt. Ernest Sheppard, arrived at 7 a.m. from the south, sailing at 11 a.m. for Stewart and other northern points whence she returned here this afternoon at 2 o'clock southbound. At the Ocean Dock was the Northland Transportation Co.'s motorship, liner Northland which arrived at 9 a.m. and, after discharging salmon from Ketchikan, sailed at 7 p.m. in continuation of her voyage to Seattle. Boats from the south brought among their passengers many city and district school teachers.

Making her final call of the season at this port, C. P. R. steamer Princess Charlotte, Capt. William Palmer, arrived in port at 4:15 Saturday afternoon from Skagway and other Alaska points and sailed at 6 p.m. for Vancouver. The vessel had on board a capacity list of 282 passengers, consisting largely of tourists returning south after making the Alaska trip. Nineteen persons disembarked from the Charlotte here making the Alaska trip. Nineteen persons disembarked from the Charlotte here.
