BATTLE LINE ALL THE WAY FROM ARCTIC TO BLACK SEA—SOVIET FORCES RESISTING STUBBORNLY — UKRAINE APPEARS IMMEDIATE OBJECTIVE

Germany's invasion of Russia is taking place by land, sea and air along a 2000 mile front from the Arctic Ocean to the Black Sea. The Nazis appear to be centering the attack from East Prussia into the Baltic States and from Rumania into Bessarabia with wheat fields of Ukraine and oil fields beyond as the immediate objective. Strong Russian resistence is evidently being met although how effective it will be and where the battles may localize are points that are as yet obscure. Millions of fighting men with heavy mechanzied forces are poised for action on either side. Air raids in the Ukraine and Russian occupied Poland have commenced. Such cities as Kiev, Sebastapol and Brest-Litovsk have been hit.

Adolf Hitler on Sunday ordered the march of the Nazi armies into Russia and the invasion commenced at 4 a.m. Hitler, in his proclamation, said he had had enough of Russia's violations of his frontier and he was commending the fate of Germany to the Army.

"Together with the Finns, the Germans are standing from Narvik to the Carpathians," Hitler declared.

It was not until an hour after the invasion commenced that the German ambassador to Moscow officially notified the Russian foreign office that Germany was in a state of war with Russia. Hitler, in a typical tirade, declared the march-in as the greatest in history. He charged that a secret understanding had all along existed between Russia and Great Britain and that Russia had attempted to stab Germany in the back through Bulgaria. He had long irked under Soviet entry of the Baltic States and Bessarabia.

It was promptly denied in London that there was any secret agreement with Russia, a British spokesman saying that it had been impossible to negotiate with Russia since Soviet foreign policy had been based on the agreement between Germany and Russia made just before the outbreak of the war in 1939.

Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky in London had a long conversation yesterday with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and emerged smiling broadly.

Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotoff of Russia, in a statement at Moscow yesterday, said that the German invasion of Russia was unparalleled in the history of civilized nations. In violation completely of the German-Russian friendship pact, it was a "wanton, barbaric attack." Molotoff announced on the Moscow radio that German planes had bombed Kiev, the Russian Ukraine capital, following Hitler's declaration of war on the Soviet. It was the first reported action of the new confict. German troops have made small gains in former Lithuania and Poland but at great cost, the Russian high command said today. German air attacks on airdromes of Kiev and Sebastapol cost the Nazis sixty-five planes, a communique said.

Line-Ups In New War-Germany

Great Britain announces policy of assisting Russia in any way possible since Russia is now an enemy of Germany. "Any man or state which fights Naziism will have our aid," says Prime Minister Winston Churchill. "Any man or state which marches with Hitler is our foe."

United States appears divided on question of extension of "lease-lend" measure to Russia. It is President Franklin D. Roosevelt's prerogative to extend the measure if he so decides. Italy follows the lead of Germany in declaring war on Russia.

Japan adopts a policy of "watchful waiting" at least for the time being. A Tokyo spokesman says there will be no decision for two weeks at least.

Finland announces a policy of neutrality although Hitler claimed her co-operation in the war against Russia. Finland protests to Moscow at alleged air attack by the Soviet on her cities and shipping in the Baltic.

Sweden announces policy of neutrality. All Swedish shipping has been called back into port. Turkey announces a policy of neutrality as between Germany and Russia although there are signs of closer Turkish ties with Germany.

Rumania is fighting actively with Germany against Russia.
