Good News For Newspapers . . .

Announcement that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board had removed the overall price ceiling from Canadian and imported newspapers, magazines and periodical publications in general will be welcome news for the newspapers at least. For various reasons, the newspapers have had cause to be alarmed at the effect the war has been having on their revenues, particularly those derived from advertising. True the war has greatly increased reader interest and the circulation of the most newspapers, including the Daily News, is much expanded when compared with a year or so ago. We are rendering a more valued function than before. Yet we were unable, if we desired to, to demand a price commensurate with the value of the service.

The lifting of the ceiling will leave the press free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues at least as far as circulation is concerned. The government, in abolishing the ceiling, recognizes the necessity of the newspapers doing something about bolstering up revenues in view of increasing costs.

Advertising rates were already exempt from price ceiling regulations.

It might be mentioned in passing that newspaper rates in Prince Rupert—both for circulation and advertising—are ridiculously low.

Now the newspapers will be able to do something more than just think about the necessity of boosting their prices in these days of mounting costs.

VISIT OF GOVERNOR

Fred Jones of Spokane Heard By Rotarians in Course of Official Tour

The Prince Rupert Rotary Club received an official visit at a dinner meeting last night from its district governor, Fred K. Jones of Spokane. He brought an interesting message to the club with some suggestions as to useful activity in war time and the ensuing peace time. President George C. Mitchell was in the chair and there was a fair attendance of members with a few guests.

It was not his first visit to Prince Rupert, Mr. Jones said, but conditions had greatly changed since last he was in this city and he was quite amazed at what he had seen here. The war was bringing Canada and the United States even closer together. Every trip he made to Canada the deeper became his respect for his Canadian friends. He referred to the international phase of this particular Rotary district which now consisted of 93 clubs, the latest of which he was about to inaugurate at Kodiak, Alaska.

Speaking on more intimate Rotary themes, Mr. Jones said that the objective of Rotary was mainly the fostering of good for community, nation and the world, development of friendships and personal contacts being merely incidental.

The district governor suggested as one useful activity of a club situated such as Prince Rupert might carry out was the paying of attention to young men of the services and assisting in making their lot more pleasant. Many of these young men were a long way from home, were lonesome and craved hospitality. Mr. Jones proposed a war activities committee in the club.

"We have to win this war," said the speaker "no matter what the cost may be." There must be a complete downfall of totalitarian governments which would remove the rights of association, free speech and other privileges which had come to be regarded as inherent to a way of living. There could be no question of the outcome.

While winning of the war must be the first consideration it was fitting to think of what sort of a world there would be after the war. The Rotary Club could well play a part in post-war reconstruction and making the world a better place in which to live. The organization, in the speaker's opinion, need not hold aloof from controversial subjects of important public movement even such as politics or religion. It need not make decisions but it was justified in considering various angles in assisting the individuals in making their decisions.

Mr. Jones suggested that Rotary should pay some attention to the younger generation and its views.

Attendance and classification were also discussed by Mr. Jones who described Rotary as simply an adaptation of the Golden Rule which he urged members to practise as individuals.

In the course of the meeting, the president conveyed birthday greetings to Norman Watt, J. J. Little and Fred Scadden. Visitors were R. S. Greig, Olof Hanson M. P., C. H. Orme and G. A. Hunter. Olof Hanson was the winner of the War Savings Certificate for the Queen's Fund.

Kalen Hardware Trophy Baseball Series Under Way

The Edmonton won the first game in the baseball play-off series for the Kalen Hardware trophy by defeating the highly touted Dry Dock nine to five.

The Fusiliers chalked up two runs in the first inning to take the lead. Pitcher Johnston, on the rubber for the Fusiliers, had the Dockers swinging hard at his curve ball, and shut them out for four innings. With two in the fifth, the Dry Dock suddenly came to life and tied the ball game up at two all. Milaney, who relieved Hitchen in the second inning, gave up a run in the seventh to put the Fusiliers ahead 3 to 2. Milaney had to retire in the ninth with a sore hand. Bury took over and the Edmonton literally had a field day, scoring six runs to practically put the same on ice. The Dry Dock started a determined rally in the last half of the ninth, but could only push across three runs.

The second game of the series will be played on Sunday and the
