Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Boston Cafe with about 85 invited guests in attendance to tender their felicitations and enjoy a very happy evening.

All sat down to dinner during which Rev. Father Lantagne proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded. The toast to the bridesmaid was proposed by John Schroeder, the groomsman.

The bride cut a beautiful cake in a conventional manner.

The evening was pleasantly spent with dancing to music by Chris Fossum's Orchestra.

During the evening Miss Elsa Kraupner entertained with tap dancing.

The story reaches a moving and ironic climax in Kane's last days when, alone in his huge half-completed castle on the Gulf coast, he contemplates the wreckage of his dreams.

Welles portrays the part of Kane between the ages of twenty-five and seventy-five in what is hailed as a striking feat of acting.

The supporting cast includes a number of comparatively new figures on the screen.
