Service For Fred Wight Held Here

Remains of Victim of Drowning Accident Are Forwarded to Vancouver for Interment

Following a service last night in St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral at which many friends gathered, the remains of the late Frederick Wight, victim of a recent drowning accident here, were forwarded last night aboard the steamer Prince Rupert to Vancouver, in which city interment will be made.

Very Rev. James B. Gibson, D.D., dean of St. Andrew's Cathedral, officiated and Peter Lien presided at the pipe organ to accompany the hymns which were "Rock of Ages" and "The King My Shepherd Is." Mrs. Thomas Dixon sang an impressive vocal solo.

The pallbearers were George Eckerman, Thomas Beattie, J. W. Pottinger, W. L. Coates, J. L. McIntosh and A. S. Nickerson.

The stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart, accompanied the body to Vancouver.

Use of the word "wireless" instead of "tireless" in referring to a machine which puts radio reception in the city out of commission somewhat spoiled the sense of a letter signed "Hopeful" in The Daily News yesterday. "Hopeful" had no intention of reflecting on any particular "wireless" machine.

EDUCATION DISCUSSED

Inspector of Schools Interesting Speaker To Rotary Club

Changes that had taken place in educational methods during the past five years formed the subject for a very interesting and instructive address yesterday before the Prince Rupert Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon by Alex Turnbull, inspector of schools for the Prince Rupert district. Close to forty members attended and the only visitor, apart from Mr. Turnbull, was Colin MacKenzie of Vancouver, x-ray expert.

Most of these changes in educational methods made for progress, Mr. Turnbull said. Under the newer conception of education was stressed the importance of citizenship, development of moral character, guidance and other subjects designed to develop a modern democracy. The schools, he said, were taking a major part of the war effort and, at the same time, were trying to train young citizens to deal with post-war problems.

The teaching staffs of the province had been sadly depleted by enlistments and matrimony and industrial developments.

When the war was over there would be a lot to do in the way of providing new buildings and replacing obsolete buildings. The tendency today was towards consolidating school districts, modern means of transportation being one of the chief factors making this possible. The old type of school with little equipment, poor lighting and lack of teaching facilities was rapidly diseappearing. The inspector stressed the value of playgrounds, mentioning that they were almost as important as the buildings. Physical education was aided by adequate playgrounds.

One of the important phases of modern education was the subordination of examinations, especially in passing students into the high schools.

The work of the correspondence school was an outstanding feature of great value to the province. It was surprisingly efficient. There were about 4,000 students enrolled, many of them doing their work in the local schools but having it supervised through correspondence.

Mr. Turnbull also discussed school libraries, the use of radio, visual education, the combating of subversive ideas. He paid a compliment to Station CFPR for its co-operation in making available the use of the radio.
