Are We Ready For "Real Thing" ...

The precautionary blackout Monday night focussed to be the minister, on Friday and attention of Prince Rupert people once again on their Saturday evenings, September 18 Air Raid Protection measures and the check-up was a sunday, at the regular morning good thing. After so long a period wthout any alarm, service, the theory was considered there was no doubt a tendency on the part of some of us to slacken up a bit. Now there has been a scurrying about to be in a better state of readiness against the possibility of the "real thing" coming along one of these fine days or nights. We had been much in need of a practice.

The A.R.P. patrol wardens report that, as a whole, decide whether or not there was lights throughout the city in homes and elsewhere were well obscured. In fact, the number of glimmers was surprisingly small. Indications are that the householders, at least, are catching on very well to the blackout idea.

Once again the whole effectiveness of the blackout was to considerable extent lost through the driving around of automobiles with glaring headlights which were visible for long distances and most certainly could be seen from the air. We have wondered before what is the use of a blackout at all if the automobiles are to be permitted to spoil it this way. We are still wondering if had both expressed ourselves and A.R.P. regulations permit some the lights which were on which we differed so radically. seen Monday night, it is high time that such regulations were changed.

Meanwhile it is to be hoped that the blackout will have had the effect of generally strengthening up and accordingly I felt at that time that perfecting the A.R.P. organization. The very great value of a well organized, prepared and equipped A.R.P. organization, knowing what to do description which I applied to the and how to do it, has proven a Godsend in many places which have already been under attack in this war. And no one would feel worse than the people of the A.R.P. themselves if disaster should come here and people should first mentioned by Mr. Parker and die or suffer unduly through lack of organization and fore his letter appeared. preparation to succor them.

The job of the A.R.P., like that of the armed forces, have devoted to this matter, and is not just to talk and plan what to do but to see that it for your fair representation of the is in a position to do what it should do if and when the time comes.

We should all be practisng up'on our A.R.P. jobs and. incidentally, those who have not such a job already would make very welcome volunteers.

People who go fumbling around in the dark to faithfully adhere to the spirit of the blackout cannot be blamed for feeling a little resentful at the automobiles which go flaming by to spoil the whole purpose of the thing.

Secretary of Prince Rupert Labor Council Back From Attending C .C. L. Convention

George Henderson, secretary of the Prince Rupert Labor Council, returned to the city yesterday via Vancouver from Ottawa where he attended the recent annual convention of the Canadian Congress of Labor which took up many matters of importance to organized labor under wartime conditions. The convention was, of course, devoted in large measure to dealing with resolutions but occasion was also taken for interviews with federal ministers and officials.

Mr. Henderson in Vancouver took up matters affecting shipyard working conditions. Last Saturday, he reports, shipyard laborers were given an advance in wages of 10c an hour from 50c to 60c, this being approved by the war labor board.
