Peace River Railway . . .

The war promises to bring to a head another important project in the development of Northern British Columbia. Possibly now we may expect early action in regard to the Peace River railway outlet as part of an international line connecting United States with Alaska. Interesting news along this line was carried in a dispatch we published a few days ago.

A Peace River railway outlet involving use of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway may not be just exactly the thing some people have favored under different conditions. However, any railway that comes out of the Peace River to Prince George will be accessible to outlets both at Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

The days are gone, of course, when we should quibble over whether or not we should be exclusively the outlet. Some of the arguments we used to have in the good old quiet days before the war when we did so much talking and got so little done seem rather inconsequential today in the light of great world events in which we, even here in Prince Rupert, are playing such a prominent part.

Real War Effort . . .

Elizabeth Muriel Gregory MacGill is Canada's only woman aeronautical engineer and she spends her days and most of her evenings overseeing the manufacture of Hurricanes for the Canadian government. She said something about "war effort" that is worth repeating. It is as follows:

"By war effort I don't mean people going to the job every day and drawing pay at the end of the week. That is not war effort—that is simply earning a living. War effort is the extra contribution of the individual. War effort is a man staying and working an extra hour or two, or five hours—without extra pay. It is a woman cutting short her noon hour to get back to finish the job. It is someone taking home his problems to solve them after dinner at night. It is someone coming back in the evening to finish an assignment. War effort is something which is as microscopic in the unit as the individual, but as mighty in the sum as an army."

The extra effort by the nations and by all the Allied peoples is what will make victory sure.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

AIR FORCE IS WINNER

Defeated Navy 3 to 2 in Fine Football Game

Playing their postponed game of last week, Royal Canadian Air Force and Navy met last evening at Acropolis Hill in Gilhuly Cup football, the fliers winning three to two.

Winning the toss, Air Force elected to play with the hill in their favor in the first half. The game started off at a smart pace with both defences playing safety first football. Some mighty clearances were made by both pair of backs. After some rushes by the Navy forwards, the boys from Seal Cove gradually took the upper hand and forced two corners in quick succession but Murray and Eastman were very strong and managed to turn the tide of battle.

Hasting, at left wing for the Fliers, put over some nice crosses but the outstanding player was Rigby at centre half for the R.C.A.F. The former Westminster Royals player showed some of the form that took the Royals to the top of the football world in Canada. Murray for the Navy was also in good form and was a tower of strength to his side.

In this half Hall scored for Air Force and the half ended with Seal Cove still on top.

Navy opened strongly in the second half and soon showed that it intended to make the most of the advantage playing down-hill. They quickly tied up the score through Bain, and flushed by this success, played like demons. Bain missed a free kick from three yards out but soon made amends by putting his side on top for the first time in the game. At this period Air Force started to put on the pressure and soon was peppering Pederson with shots from all angles. With only five minutes to go, Rigby met a beautiful cross from Hastings with his head and put the ball well out of the net-minder's reach. It was the kind of a goal that football fans dream about. With only a couple of minutes left, Rigby drove well out and the ball hit the inside of the upright to leave Pederson flat-footed and the game ended with the score: R.C.A.F., 3; Navy, 2.

Navy—Pederson; Murray and Eastman; Brown, Veitch and Engelson, Cameron, Cameron, Bain, Bishop and Bowles.

R.C.A.F.—Stabloom; Poole and Thorndycroft; Carswell, Rigby and Stapher; Smith, Cousins, Hall, Tucker and Hastings; Subs: Candy and Sommerville.

FOODS ARE DISCUSSED

Miss Jessie McLenaghan Interesting Speaker To Women's Canadian Club

In addressing the Women's Canadian Club Saturday afternoon, Miss Jessie McLenaghan, director of home economics for the Department of Education of British Columbia, stressed the importance of knowledge of food nutrition not only in wartime but in peacetime as well.

More and more women, Miss McLenaghan stated, are donning uniforms and entering into service for their country. While perhaps not as glamorous, the work of the homemaker was no less important in helping to win this war.

Restrictions of certain foods were becoming more numerous, the speaker said, and it was up to the housewife to make the most of the available foods and prepare them in such a way as to preserve all the protective qualities. To ensure against loss of vitamins, vegetables should be cooked quickly and in as little water as possible. A common mistake was to prepare vegetables several hours before cooking and leave them standing in water. This resulted in loss of valuable minerals and destruction of vitamins.

It was generally believed that the undernourished always belonged to the lower-salaried group but this was not the case. Frequently in the better homes the food, while attractively served, food, while attractively served, was not always the most nutritious.

An adequate diet was found in the most simple foods such as milk, milk products, green and yellow vegetables, whole grain cereals and fresh fruit.

With a knowledge of food nutrition the homemaker could stretch her budget. It enabled her to make substitutions and prevented her from becoming a food faddist.

Miss McLenaghan ended her address with the advice: "After you have eaten what you should, eat what you want."

The newly elected president, Mrs. J. A. Rutherford, was in the chair and there was a fair attendance of members.
