DAILY EDITION. TUESDAY, JUNE 18

NEEDLESS ALARM.

Western newspapers complain very bitterly because some of the eastern newspapers are writing up western cities and western conditions somewhat unfairly, or, at least, without the enthusiasm of the westerner. They seem to have an idea that these eastern newspapers have started out to "knock" the western cities. They refer particularly to the letters of H. F. Gadsby in the Toronto Star and Mr. Harris of the Toronto Saturday Night. We believe that the western editors are somewhat unduly alarmed.

It is annoying at times to come upon the cocksure epistles and articles of some eastern newspaper men who have just looked over the country and have got everything wrong end foremost, but that does not apply to any great extent, as far as we are aware, to the two writers just mentioned. It is true that they have expressed their opinions somewhat plainly upon certain phases of our development, but we believe, without any general desire to injure the country.

These gentlemen come west to examine conditions. They seem to be somewhat alarmed about our extensive subdivisions. That is not surprising. Some western people are alarmed about the extensive areas upon the markets. The western editors who have watched the incomprehensible development during the last few years marvel at nothing and as a usual thing have held their peace. These eastern writers have no hesitation. They have never seen a city in the making and cannot understand how such development, as we all hope for and expect, can take place. And being from Toronto, where every person knows everything, or almost that, they do not hesitate to say that such expansion is quite impossible.

However, the opinions of these gentlemen cannot alter conditions very much. They recognize the worth of the western cities. They realize that the progress of the west cannot be held up. They admit that the larger cities have bright futures, but warn investors to look before they make investments. That is the very advice that they should give and the very thing that legitimate agents desire.

These writers are somewhat alarmed at the over speculation and the far flung subdivisions. They might look at home, in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. But they do not do so. But even if these eastern cities will not bear scrutiny, the western cities will bear the very closest examination. As long as these gentlemen confine themselves to fact, Western Canadian cities should be satisfied, and will not be much injured even if the authors draw conclusions which are not always justified by the facts.—Morning Albertan.

Latest Royal Dance Was Marvel of Dress

organized by the Duchess of Somerset, Alexander Hood represented his great ancestor, and the Duchess herself represented her predecessor of 1812, Charlotte, daughter of the Earl of Winchelsea, second wife of the Duke of Somerset. She was dressed as the duchess as pictured by Hogarth. Her gray satin dress, made with full empire train, had bell sleeves with large turnback cuffs and wide frills of lace fall over her hands.

Others dancing in the quadrille were Lady Bathurst and Lord Apsley, Lady Muriel Bathurst, Lady Leicester, Lady Kathleen Thynne, Lady Muriel Paget, Lady Howard de Walden, the Duke of Bronte, Lord Bristol and Sir Edward Chichester.

Court beauties of the regency assembled for the two square dances, which Lady Kilmory undertook, and in which a bevy of beautiful young women, representing court and society in 1812, were seen. Among these in the court set were Lady Kilmory's own daughter, Lady Villiers, Lady Acheson, Lady Bailey, Mrs. Francis Needham, Miss Violet Keppel and Miss Rosamund Grosvenor.

Prince Alexander of Teck danced in the society quadrille as well as Lady Kilmory's son, Lord Newry; Lord Victor Paget, Lord Desmond Fitzgerald, Lady Ingestre, Miss Sackville-West, Mrs. Henage and Mrs. Lavinia Bingham.

Historic Regiments.

The household cavalry, the Goldstream Guards, the Lancers, the cavalry and the dragoons of 1812 were all represented. A particularly effective costume was designed from the German Lancer Regiment's uniforms of 1812, and was cleverly adapted to the ladies' dresses by the addition of short skirts of green cloth slit up to the knees and slashed with red. The black leather helmet had a metal top and coque plumes, two chains linking them to the breast. Another beautiful uniform was that of the German Grenadier Guards of 1812, made of blue and white cloth, with collar and cuffs of bright red.

The European regiments quadrille was led by Lady Constance Hatch, who had a picturesque costume as a Russian hussar. It was of blue cloth, of the shade between royal and saxe blue, with the skirt slit up one side and edged with silver lace. A silver fassel marked the opening and silver shoes and stockings were also worn.

Lady Minto's Quadrille.

Lady Alfred Cecilia Coates, who also danced in this quadrille, wore a primrose empire dress with a turban to match. Lady Mildred Follett was dressed in mauve. Mrs. Godfrey Faussett in pale pink and Lady Markham in blue gray. Eight differently colored dresses were shown in all, and all the ladies wore square toed, heeless shoes, with "elevators."

Another very interesting set was the ancestor's quadrille, arranged by Lady Sarah Wilson, who copied a dress in a portrait of one of the Churchill family. The Countess Torby represented an empress of Russia and Mrs. Duggan a lady of Napoleon's court.

ranged by Lady Sarah Wilson, who copied a dress in a portrait of one of the Churchill family. The Countess Torby represented an empress of Russia and Mrs. Duggan a lady of Napoleon's court.

Lady Minto's Indian quadrille had the advantage of the beautiful costumes which she brought home from India, and her quadrille, with the brilliant coloring of the east, made a very striking spectacle. Her three daughters, Lady Errington, Lady Charles Fitzmaurice and Lady Eileen Elliot, of course, took part, and another cleverly organized quadrille was the "sports and pastimes" by Lady Mond, who herself represented "cards." Her white chiffon dress was made empire fashion, the skirt opening at one side, as the correct "Merveilluse."

BUILDERS OF THE TITANIC

Harland & Wolff Acquire New Site—Now Preparing Finest Shipbuilding Yard in Glasgow—Old River Clyde Rejoices.

Belfast, June 12.—It was only a few months ago that it was announced that Messrs. Harland & Wolff of Belfast had acquired the shipbuilding yard of the London & Glasgow Shipbuilding & Engineering Company, covering over ten acres, and an announcement that has just been made shows that the former transaction was merely part of a far larger scheme.

The announcement in question is that the great Belfast firm has acquired the site of Messrs. Mackie & Thompson's shipbuilding yard at Glasgow, covering an area of some six acres and adjoining Messrs. Harland & Wolff's earlier purchase.

These arrangements, which give the firm a large stretch of river frontage extending from the Clyde Trust's docks to Govan ferry, in addition to their extensive engineering and boilermaking works at Lamefield quay on the other side of the river, should place the Belfast firm in a commanding position on the Clyde.

WAGER WALKER

He Must Marry as Well as Walk.

Quebec, June 12.—Mr. J. E. Labrecque, a French-Canadian globe trotter under contract with two London papers, left Quebec this morning on a walk to San Francisco. His contract obliges him to wed during the trip and he met the other day the woman he wanted, Miss Chai-bot of Sillery, with whom he drew up the necessary agreements before a notary. The wedding will take place before the trip finishes.

Sold in bulk by quart or pint, delicious, refreshing hot weather necessity, ice cream at Keeley's.

You Can Thank Advertising

NEXT time you step into the corner store, take a look around. Of all the articles on the shelves, how many were on your shopping list five years ago? Make it ten years, and you will find that most of the things you buy to-day—and could not do without—were not even made then.

You men and women who buy things, let this sink in. You are better men and women because of advertising. You eat more wholesome food. You wear better clothes. Your home is better furnished. You have cleaner and more sanitary houses. You read better books and magazines. You seek more healthful amusements.

Your whole standard of living has been raised—and why? Because the men who make these better things are telling you that you will be more comfortable, happier and healthier if you use these higher grade goods.

It is advertising that makes it possible for you to buy "the best" right at your corner store. It is advertising that encourages the inventor to make new comforts and new utilities and enables you to buy them almost immediately after they are perfected.

J. J. Hill says this "high living" costs more. True for J. J.—but it is worth more. And leaving the cost aside, do you want to go back to buying jam out of a pail, oatmeal out of a barrel, raisins out of sticky boxes, or tea exposed in an open chest?

Do you regret the money you paid for a Player Piano?

Would you forego the new style razor?

Isn't a Tungsten worth a thousand candles?

Would you now be enjoying these if enterprising manufacturers had not told you about them in their advertisements?

Isn't life brighter because we have new and higher standards of living?
Let us thank advertising for it.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any good advertising agency or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.
