COUNCIL IS INSTALLED

Ceremonies Held Recently at Native Village of Kincolith on Nass River

KINCOLITH, Dec. 15.—Installation of the newly elected councillors and officers of the village of Kincolith for the year 1943 was held recently with an interesting program consisting of music and speeches followed by the serving of refreshments after which dancing was enjoyed and games played, the evening's proceedings coming to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

The program consisted of readings of the names of the officers by Secretary Chris Trimble, selections "Pride of the Navy," "Triumph of Peace," and "Fort Washington" by the orchestra, addresses by Chief Councillor George L. Stewart, Ernest Angus and Francis Watts and by Constable Rufus Watts.

The council for the year consists of the following:
 Chief Councillor, George L. Stewart.

Councillors, Arthur Nelson sr., Francis Watts, Ernest Angus and Herbert Haldane.

Treasurer, Matthew Stewart. Secretary, Chris Trimble. Clerk, Hector Gurney.

The constables for the year are Rufus Watts, Isaac Angus, Johnny Moore, Richard Watts, Arthur Gurney, Morris Haldane, George Clayton and Eddie Nelson.

GIRLS IN SEABOOTS
 SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 15.—All Auxiliary Territorial Service girls working in mixed batteries will be issued with smocks, seaboot stockings and heavy white gloves this winter. The clothing is similar to Navy issue and will be made available mainly to girls working on anti-aircraft gun crews.

CASE OF LABOR

works, dealing particularly with deplorable conditions of sanitation in the wartime housing area. He proposed a secondary water main for the city for which he would ask the government for financial support. Contractors who were tearing up the city streets should repair them.

Purchase Bark Power
 H. M. Daggett submitted that the city should purchase the hydro-electric power system and operate it as a municipal utility so that cheap power could be given and the profits retained for the use of the city. There should also be more adequate water service. There should be no franchise for private interests in the bus service. The telephone system was inadequate and every effort should be made to improve it. At the end of the year Labor would give an account of its stewardship. Mr. Daggett made it clear that he was not running under the auspices of any political party.

George Hills set out to discuss the city manager plan and the reason for Labor's opposition. The Labor candidates pledged themselves to protect the rights of the people. A city manager would be most undemocratic. After all, someone would be running the city manager. Mr. Hills referred to the importance of developing permanent industries and deplored the fact that twenty-five percent of the harbor fleet had already left Prince Rupert.

Educational Program
 J. T. Langridge, candidate for school trustee, outlined the Labor platform to improve school grounds pay adequate salaries and increments to school teachers, supervise traffic around the schools, secure additional government grants, provide bus service, practice economy compatible with service and efficiency and establish air raid shelters. More technical education, vocational guidance were also desirable. Mr. Langridge also protested at the staff houses having been built against the school property and promised that, if elected, he would work against any more of them.

Jack Deane spoke of the importance of education of the children in a democratic economy. Education depended upon the ability of the teachers for whom security must be provided in the way of compensation and housing. Mr. Deane thought that wartime workers should bear a share of school costs proportionate to that which the property owners were called upon to meet.

Labor "Vastly Better"
 Bruce Mickleburgh expressed confidence that there was going to be a labor council. There were many bottlenecks mitigating against the war effort in Prince Rupert and many problems had to be solved. He described the Labor candidates as "vastly better" than the others who were offering themselves. Instead of being "the city of 1000 bottlenecks," Prince Rupert should be setting the pace for democratic effort.

G. W. Rudderham, the chairman, suggested that all the ratepayer candidates intended to do was turn the work over to a city manager. They admitted that they were not capable of running the city's business. Why not elect the men who believed they could carry on the city's business. It would cost half a million dollars to get the city back in the shape of 1933. Mr. Rudderham claimed that money had been lost through the Alder refunding plan because of the lengthening of the period of interest paying.

D. A. MacPhee had some questions to ask in regard to street lighting.

Announcement

Restrictions placed upon us by the Wartime Prices & Trade Board compel us to announce we shall be unable to put on our "Christmas Special" this year.

This practice of sending a small box of smoked fish, typical of the dominant industry of Prince Rupert, has become increasingly popular and we are very sorry we shall have to disappoint our many customers this year.

After the war, we hope we shall again be able to make this special Christmas offer available to our many friends.
