The Red Cross drive is still a couple of months off open to the men of the forces, but we would urge the citizens to keep it in mind and with the chatelaine (in many prepare to contribute as generously as possible when the cases a peeress) doing the actual time comes.

It is not necessary for us to dwell on the important They have set aside all prejudices functions the Red Cross plays throughout the world par- for the duration and shall we in ticularly in time of war.

Probably, also, the most of Prince Rupert people are Col. J. L. Ralston, the minister of aware of what the Red Cross is already preparing to do defence, in the House at Ottawa, to help Prince Rupert should disaster arise here.

Prince Rupert has every reason to respond in a big man in the forces took which way to the Red Cross campaign.

War Jitters . . .

The Vancouver Province may be right in declaring that compares with the service of that alarmist propaganda has gone much too far in that life." Of course, Vancouver is in a different position than Prince Rupert and what applies there might not apply altogether here. It would appear from a realistic standpoint that Prince Rupert is more exposed to $ attack than Vancouver and, if it is not now, may be before long an even more desirable target for the enemy. That it is possible for the enemy to come here, if he has ? a mind to, is, of course, obvious.

into a false sense of security," says the Province. "No one would wish to impair in any degree their efforts to protect themselves or their property against possible dangers. But let's look the facts in the face. What can happen here?"

As for nuisance raids, they are possible by plane, surface ship or submarine, goes on the Vancouver paper which, however, believes they are not probable.

Invasion by force the Province considers a remoter possibility.

It would be folly to neglect air raid precautions, says the Province. They should be strengthened in every possible way but "let's not talk as if bombs were falling with
