John G. Brown Passes Away at Kispiox at Age of Eighty-four Years

John G. Brown, chief of the native clan at Kispiox and well known as a fishing boat contractor all along the Skeena River, passed away recently at the Hazelton Hospital at the age of eighty-four years. His successor as chief of the clan and boat contractor is Walter Skulsh.

Deceased was one of the first of the old school of natives to become Christianized. He was highly respected as well as being very well known and his passing is widely regretted.

The funeral took place from the Kispiox United Church with Rev. Andrew Rutherford, the resident missionary, officiating. There was a large congregation from all parts of the district. Mrs. Rutherford presided as the organ to accompany the hymns and the Kispiox Band, augmented by players from Hazelton, was in attendance at the rites.

Deceased is survived by his widow, one son, Harry, and a daughter, Mrs. Jeffery Harris.

CAN WORK TOGETHER

land communication demonstrated that Canada and Russia after all were quite close neighbors. The peoples of the two countries must inevitably be brought even closer together.

Mr. Davies, describing Asiatic Russia, told something of the development of agriculture in Russia above the Arctic Circle. At a place on the Yenesei River about the same altitude as Aklavik in the Northwest Territories of Canada potatoes, tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce and such like were grown but something of outstanding interest to the speaker had been the development of the horizontal apple vine, the fruit of which, while not as luscious as the vertical apple of Canada, was nevertheless quite acceptable.

But it was wrong, continued Mr. Davies, to think that Russia had all that was good and Canada all that was bad. Canada could be proud of its shipbuilding yards and their accomplishments, its commercial air lines, its great munitions plants. The speaker told of interviewing the Soviet minister to Canada at Ottawa recently. The minister admitted that he had come to see what Russia could learn from Canada.

Excellent Business People
 The Russians, Mr. Davies had found, were excellent business people. They had an amazing railway organization. They tried to do business by cost accounting, even in the grim business of war. A great steel plant deep in Russia, near Afghanistan, thousands of miles from frontiers of the enemy was described.

The Russians might seem naive and simple. There was the instance of a huge Russian receiving a manicure in Moscow. Later it was found that, in the interests of cleanliness, all workers in Russian factories had to have their hands manicured and their hair trimmed. The tradition of ignorance, dirt and poverty was fast disappearing.

The speaker went on to describe marvellous industrial developments of the Soviet Union—a textile factory producing enough cloth for 11,000,000 uniforms.

Mr. Davies' interpretation of the Russian postwar view was favor of the world continuing on a co-operative basis, the organization of the United Nations in some sort of League of Nations, the prevention of cut-throat competition, international antagonisms and war madness.

Already, the speaker asserted, this war was showing that coalitions worked. Stalin had been helped to win the Battle of Stalingrad by the campaign in North Africa.

It was unthinkable to expect that the world would return to the old spirit of national sovereignties.

"Here in the North Pacific we must become friends," concluded Mr. Davies "by the exchange of commerce. I think Canada can do good business in the future with Alaska and Russia. I hope that some day I may be able to come back here to see Prince Rupert and her business men profiting from trade with the Soviet. Russia looks like a good customer to me. She pays her bills and there is good reason to anticipate mutual respect and collaboration. The Canadian Aid to Russia campaign and its success was an indication of goodwill. Business inevitably follows goodwill."

President G. C. Mitchell was in the chair at the luncheon and guests included William A. Deweir of the American Red Cross; Capt. A. Acree, United States Army chaplain; Dr. J. T. Jones of Indiana and William Trotter of Prince Rupert; Rev. W. P. Bunt of Vancouver; Dr. Fiddes of Port Simpson and Rev. J. A. Donnell of Prince Rupert.

LET THE FLAME

OF FAITH

BURN BRIGHTLY

In history 'Finis' can never be set at the end of the page nor at the close of a year. The end of one chapter tells the beginning of another, the close of the old year the opening of a new. Standing within the threshold of 1943, the challenge is of the ages, a call for courage amid toil and trial and sacrifice. We look back upon a year of cloud and pain, hallowed by the death of heroes. Their valor is ransom for our future, and has opened for us the vista of triumph now stretching ahead. Let us not lose what they have bought. As we press on to victory, let the flame of our faith burn brightly. With gratitude for the past, with courage for the present, with faith for the future, let us reconsecrate ourselves to our task . . . to the end that torment may be lifted from men's hearts and peace come for all nations and peoples.
