Election in P. E. I...

The result of the election in Prince Edward Island ing? Well, I don't just know how yesterday presents no surprise. As a matter of fact, it was pretty much as might have been expected. The Liberal government is still in office with a commanding majority.

The Conservative Progressives have, apparently, won eight or ten seats out of a house of thirty, gaining from the sole three they had in the last house. This should be a matter of some satisfaction to the party which is endeavoring to rejuvenate itself.

The C. C. F., which entered the campaign late and was not expected to make much of a showing, failed to elect any of its nine candidates.

While it was interesting, the contest in the little in the odd midnight show at the island province failed to provide any new significance of importance in the general political picture of the Dominion.

Housing Committee Resigns . . .

The local advisory committee of Wartime Housing Ltd. consisting of responsible local ciitizens, has resigned because, it says, it was not consulted on matters which rightfully should have been taken up with it and in connection with which it believes it could have given helpful advice. It is to be supposed that the committee would not have gone to the length of resigning in a body unless it felt that the situation Meeting appearing in your valuhad become intolerable and that it could not function usefully under the circumstances. If, as it succests, the committee was virtually ignored, it certainly is graph should have read:"He exjustified in protesting but it is reprettable that the protest had to be accompanied with the extreme action of asking to be relieved of its duties. A local com- consideration to their employmittee could give valuable advice and it is a pity of view." that; such advice should not be accorded full opportunity of presentation and due consideration.

New Military Policy ...

The reduction of Canada's home defence operational military force by some twenty thousand men, as announced this week by Col. J. L. Ralston; minister of national defence, in a move which involves the disbanding of the seventh and eighth divisions and partial disbandment of the sixth division, is but another indication of the shifting tide of war. It marks a notable change in military policy whereby the high category men of the active forces are to be put into speedy and intensive training for overseas service while the less fit will be eliminated and sent back to civilian occupations where they can be employed to better advantage in the industrial war effort.

The move implies acceptance of the premise that the war will be concluded by offensive action abroad rather than by defensive measures at home. It does not mean that there will be any lessening in the need or demand for first class men for the fighting forces. The war must be over before it will be safe to make any assumption like that.

Local Radio Situation . . . We had been led to believe that well before this time the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation would have finally acquired the local broadcasting station and connected it up directly with the national network. That was the assurance that Ira Dilworth, regional director, gave us last December when he came here and announced that the C.B.C. had "come to Prince Rupert." The people of Prince Rupert feel they are entitled to the C.B.C. service as the due of the city and district which has long borne exasperating radio reception and continues to do so.

We suppose it was responsibly made when a pledge was given on behalf of the radio commission last December and we may assume the intention is to make it good when circumstances permit.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A.

AND Y.W.C.A. By DOROTHY GARBUTT

The ladies of the Coast Battery Auxiliary are holding another dance next Monday night in aid of their overseas cigarette fund. In view of this the following letter they received in acknowledgment of cigarettes should be of interest. It goes to show that the fags really do get there. It's from Lance Corporal W. D. Blackstock who writes:

"Once again I want to thank you for the cigarettes which I have just received from you and as I've said before these gifts are welcomed at all times.

"A bit about our life here. As you know England is by no means famous for its sunshine. When we do get a bit of sunshine, well, the army steps in and from their point of view, take advantage of it by working enjoying ourselves and soon we hope to be over there doing our share of it. . . .
