The Road Situation . . .

It does not need the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce to draw to the attention of the press the truly terrible condition of the streets and roads of Prince Rupert including that important industrial artery to Seal Cove which has been notoriously bad for so long now. In fact, it is not only bad but it is downright dangerous. We shudder to think what might happen along that road, particularly now that the hazardous days of winter driving are nearly upon us.

The press of Prince Rupert has been hammering away at this subject for a long time now. It cannot be suggested that the Daily News has not been agitating persistently on the matter, endeavouring to keep the subject to the fore with a view to obtaining some action from the authorities responsible which in this case appear to be at Ottawa.

Nor has the city council been inactive. The only trouble appears to be that, in many instances, more particularly the Seal Cove road, we have been getting nowhere.

Possibly, it might be of some effect if the public itself would make itself more audible on the subject in support of the civic authorities, the Chamber of Commerce and the press.

AIRMEN VICTORIOUS

three-hit flinging to O'Leary's timely clubbing. Whittaker's stonewall defence at third, and Patterson's sensational bare-handed stab of Nigro's Texas leaguer.

The rest of the Yanks supplemented Nigro's six-hit hurling with good support but their weakness with the willow led to their downfall.

The Flyers didn't waste any time. Whittaker opened the crucial contest by making first on Anderson's muff. Blore then played it smart by laying down a bunt and was safe at first when Manders errored Filson's peg. Whittaker going all the way to third. O'Leary, the next hitter, did the logical thing by squeeze playing Whittaker home. Blore was snuffed out on an attempted theft of third. Bennes followed with a walk but Crymble ended the half by lining to second.

There was no scoring for either side in the second. In the American half, Crymble wiped out all three batters on strike outs.

The Airmen continued their winning ways in the third when they were good for two more runs on a walk, sacrifice and two hits. Anderson, first man up, ambled to first on four straight balls, and took second on Whittaker's clean single in-when Manders errored Filson's with a sacrifice. O'Leary then dented the canteen roof for a double that scored Anderson and Whittaker.

After the Flyers got another in their half of the fifth on O'Leary's one baser, Bennes safely into left field and Crymble's squeeze play, the Yanks hitched up their trousers and started to do a little climbing that was good for two counters. Ofsonka got a free ticket and went all the way to third on Filson's extra base hit along the right field foul line. While Volsky was erasing Randall and Carlson on grounders, Ofsonka and Filson galloped home.

The Yanks made it real close in the seventh—their final attempt to wrest the championship from the Flyers. Ofsonka opened by walking and went all the way to third on a passed ball and Filson's infield out. He then brought the American nearer to victory when he counted while Randall was being rubbed out at first, for the second put-out. Carlson buoyed his teammates' spirits with an infield knock. With two down, and the tying run resting on first, the winning tally in the person of Manders, came in to swing—only to line to Volsky for the final put-out.

This ended a series that was closely and, at times, grudgingly fought from the opening to the closing pitch.

DRAMA IS TINGLING

Capturing the full violence and suspense of a whole town bent on a merciless crime, "The Oxbow Incident," which comes to the Capitol Theatre for today only is a story of two-fisted action that begins, when Henry Fonda and his partner, Henry Morgan, get caught in the swirl of murderous mob fury, seething to a frenzy in the town of Bridger's Wells.

A rancher named Kinkaid has been reported slain. Because suspicion is directed at them, Fonda and Morgan join the posse hunting for the killers—an undertaking which develops into one of the most ruthless man-hunts ever to be pictured on the screen.

The action gains in tension when the posse apprehends three men enmeshed in circumstantial evidence and screams for "lynch" justice on the spot. Although calmer heads intervene, the fate of the three men is decided in a spine-tingling climax.

Featured in important roles are Dana Andrews, Mary Beth Hughes, Anthony Quinn, William Eythe, Henry Morgan and Jane Darwell.

Jim...do you realize how much we're worth in VICTORY BONDS alone?

JIM: We've done our share every loan. So it should be a tidy sum.

MARY: It is, but I wish we had a lot more. There is nothing like preparing for a rainy day, and buying Victory Bonds is one of the best ways to save.

JIM: Well, let's see. We bought a $100 bond the first loan, and found it so easy to pay for on the installment plan that we doubled that for the second and third loans. That's $500 right there!

MARY: Then, the last loan, to help back the attack, we signed up for a $500 bond.

JIM: Well, in the next loan, we'll take another $500 bond : : : and a little bit more. That will give us a nice nest-egg for the future. When peace comes we can start building that home we've got planned. And there'll be plenty of good business opportunities to look into.

MARY: Besides all the things we'll be needing when everything is available again.

JIM: But by gosh, Mary : : : despite the kick we get out of providing for the future, I get my greatest thrill in knowing the money we lend is helping to beat the enemy . . . to bring our troops home quicker . . . and make this a better world for our children to grow up in.

MARY: It all ties together, Jim. By investing everything we can in Victory Bonds, we are being practical as well as patriotic. That's why, with victory on the way, we should save harder than ever before.
