Bologna is an important centre in relation to Brenner Pass.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Oct. 6 —British Eighth Army headquarters in Italy report that the Nazis are making a determined effort to hold up the Allied advance along the entire front across Italy with a general rearguard action. There is particularly stiff resistance on the east coast. However, the Eighth Army has consolidated its position at Termini and there are indications that it may head westward to join in the drive on Rome.

The Cairo radio has said that the Fifth Army occupied Valatta and Grottaminara in the Melfi salient.

The Eighth Army's advance up the Adriatic coast threatens to turn Nazi defences which may be centred about Rome and the Apennines. On the west coast Allied air forces concentrated on enemy front formations north of Naples have destroyed a vital bridge at Capua over which withdrawing columns of enemy troops had been moving across the Volturno River. Bombers raided freight yards at Civitavecchia, 30 miles northwest of Rome. Three Allied planes were lost. Axis propaganda sources say that bitter fighting in the Trieste area and elsewhere to the northeast of Italy with Yugo Slav and other elements has prevented Nazi reinforcements being sent to southern Italy.
