The Road to Tokyo . . .

The war of attrition against Japan goes on. The pincers inexorably draw closer from the North, the South, the East, the West. There is much distance yet to travel. It is further from Kiska to Munda than it is from Prince Rupert to St. Johns, Newfoundland.

But already the Japanese are restive. Their Naval spokesman, who so frequently announced the "annihilation" of the United States fleet, has been removed from his post. The Tokyo radio boasts that conquest of Java, Burma, Borneo has made Japan a "have" nation, but adds: "The difficulty at present is that these materials cannot be brought immediately to Japan because of a lack of transport."

The American Navy claims to have sunk 210 Japanese ships, to have probably sunk another 29' and to have damaged 58. Lack of transport, indeed.

Not the least encouraging aspect of this war of attrition is Japan's persistence in sending out small, relatively ineffective forces to supply its beleaguered FOR SALE Modern six room garrisons. Apparently, their strange notions of "face" compel them to run their "Tokyo Express" missions of easily attacked light warships and transports to stations under siege, but their vivid realization of their utter dependence upon seapower prevents them Licensed diesel passenger ferry. from risking forces substantial enough either to deliver effective relief or successfully fight off attack.

In the meantime, the swish of torpedoes, the earth-shaking bombardments, the furious air assaults, the merciless land fighting mount in unrelenting fury on all the roads that lead to Tokyo.

The Lesson of Fascism...

The symbol of Fascism was the bundle of sticks, or "fasces," which, as the old fable tells us, were indestructible while they remained together though they could be broken one by one. The adoption of this symbol by Italian Fascists was as misleading as Sport Chat most of their assertions. The Fascists had only one stick in the bundle—Benito Mussolini. When he was discredited at last by his ill-conceived attempt at empire-building there was nothing left of the party.

But its history should stand as a warning to free men for all time. It is the history of violence, of the idolatry of utter materialism, and the shameless adoption of deceit as a policy, all undertaken with such unrestrained bombast as to prevent sane men from taking its manifestations seriously.

Il Duce was the age's biggest joke—until he became one of its biggest tragedies. Fascism was at first a circus. Then at one time it became in some men's eyes one of two choices, each an extreme. The higher ground of freedom was lost sight of by those who tried to choose between extremes.

Of course, there are Fascists in Italy still. They will watch every opportunity to reassert their control. And some conservative elements may once more see them as allies in a struggle against liberal con- or estimated their scores and cepts. Moreover, the materials of Fascism are latent the various flights were conin human thinking. Italy has no monopoly on them. But the emptiness of Fascist swagger, and the smashing of the myth of its invincibility by determined opposition should remain one of the great lessons of shalltown, Iowa. He's 79 years history.

Think about a golf tournament where you can qualify by just estimating your score. If the weather isn't suitable you can give the officials a rough idea of what you would have shot and that's that. It's the annual Tri-State Senior Tournament which Amarillo, Texas, has been holding for nine years

If a man is at least 50 years old—he has to be at the halfcentury mark to belong to the association-he's as good as qualified. For instance, in this year's tournament rain bogged the qualifying round. The golfers just went out and shot a little then came in and reported structed on those facts and fig-

Take H. E. Winter of Marold. He came so far for the tournament they told him not to go out in the bad weather to qualify. They just estimated he shot 85. There was no one who could prove that he couldn't have done it. They're just a bunch of quiet-loving guys who want to play golf with opponents of their own size. More than anything they don't want any young squirts beating them around the course.
