Here is another dish that helps s-t-r-e-t-c-h meat as well as use leftovers

Here in Canada we have in the past FOR RENT at Francois Lake dish-reminiscent of Anglo-Indian Colonels and dark-skinned native house, $7 weekly, for summer cooks. But in a time like this, curry and bedding comes into its own. In the first place, fishing and lima beans, peas, and other meat milk. Also alternates—not to mention sea food furnished or unfurnished and eggs-all take very kindly to house to rent permanently, $6 the curry treatment. Then the most assorted and miscellaneous collection monthly, at Landing. Mrs. H. of meat leftovers can assume new glamour in a curry. Finally, curry offers the perfect treatment for the less tender and tasty cuts of meat. FOR RENT-Store suitable for

I pound lean meat, diced 4 to 6 good-sized onions 21/2 cups stock or water

1 cup diced tart apple, or sliced carrot with juice of 1/2 lemon 2 tablespoons curry powder Salt and pepper

Cook the onions, sprinkled with half the curry powder, in a little hot dripping or other cooking fat, until tender and delicately browned. Add the stock and apple or carrot, bring to boil, reduce heat, and simmer, covered, for two hours or until meat is tender. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour off and measure liquid, and thicken smoothly with flour blended smoothly with cold liquidallowing 11/2 tablespoons flour for each cup of gravy. At the same time, add remaining curry (more or less, to taste). Connoisseurs consider curry best if cooled overnight and reheated . . . the "hot" flavour becomes mellow. Serve with fluffy hot rice, and chutney.

The basic recipe we give here can be varied to suit your family's taste. If they like "hot" foods you candouble or treble the quantity of curry powder. The important thing is to allow yourself plenty of time and plenty of onions. Any vegetable leftovers can be added with benefit, both to the dish and your diet.

QUICK RICE

Into a big saucepan of rapidly boiling, salted water, filter the dry rice so that the water never ceases to boil. When oft (20 minutes), strain in collander. Pour another kettle of boiling water through the rice. Drain thoroughly and serve in a pre-heated dish.
