U.S. TORPEDO BOAT

This exclamation point, made of TNT, is ready to punctuate any Axis submarine line that may be prowling in the Panama area. Depth charges similar to this, dropped from the U.S. Navy's fast motor torpedo boats, teach the Axis subs how to walk on the bottom of the ocean. This picture was made during a recent manoeuvre.

Some wartime tips on the use of bones, trimmings and meat drippings

In wartime we waste nothing. And this actually leads us to many worthwhile discoveries. Meat trimmings that once were thrown away are now used to add flavour to soups, vegetables and casserole dishes such as rice, spaghetti or potatoes. Of course, no waste kitchen fat is ever thrown away. Fats are needed by war industries. But meat drippings are high in nutritive value and full of flavour. They should be used as much as sible
