Broiling and pan-broiling fit neatly into the warm weather food picture

No one wants to spend hot hours in the kitchen these days, so now's the time to plan easily prepared meals with a come-on flavour that will satisfy the family, yet leave time for outdoor activities.

If broiling brings to your mind only luscious pictures of a thick beef steak, remember that lots of class C meats as well as some unrationed meats readily lend themselves to broiling!

Many an exclusive restaurant menu used to list-even in the days of plenty-"de luxe chopped steak." And this featured entree rooms and a quick cooking green can just as well be prepared vegetable. in your own kitchen.

One coupon's worth of ground beef or lamb mixed with a pinch of herbs or chopped onion shaped into flat cakes makes a delicious meal for four people. Serve with broiled tomato slices or mush-

WARTIME BROILING

For broiled meats (whether oven-broiled or pan-broiled) the basic rule of meat cookery should be followed: slow cooking to avoid shrinkage. So keep the heat down and do not overcook.

Calf or lamb liver, veal or lamb kidney or par-boiled sliced sweetbreads brushed with soft fat are all meals well worth trying. For a big party a mixture of any or all of these three plus lamb cutlets, tomatoes and mushrooms gives you a ration-thrifty but impressive 'English Mixed Grill."
