special. It was just my job."

Thus speaks Petty Officer W. H. Cowie, who has seen 31 months of convoy duty on the north and west Atlantic TN FEBRUARY, 1942, Bill Cowie was sweating in the stokehold of the L Canadian corvette "Barrie". Off Iceland, the convoy they were escorting ran into a U-boat pack. The escorts fought it off, only to encounter another, and then another.

"It was a running battle for a week and a half," says Cowie. "Two merchant ships and a Free French corvette were torpedoed. Thirty-five of the corvette's crew were lost. The "Barrie" and another ship brought the rest - almost three dozen ships - safely to port. As revenge, on the way back we tackled a sub - and we think we 'got' her."

Bill Cowie had a close shave when a depth charge exploded alongside his corvette, smashing surface pumps and cracking boiler seams. While he was aboard the corvette "Buctouche", they sank a U-boat not far off Nova Scotia. Earlier, his ship, a British armed merchant cruiser, helped a convoy of 30 tankers elude a Nazi surface raider.

This man knows the thrill of action against Hitler's water wolves. He knows what it is like to see fighting comrades go to their deaths. He has seen the look in the eyes of torpedoed merchant seamen snatched from expected death.

"There's a big job to be done yet," says Bill Cowie, "and it can't be done unless folks at home back us up. We'll do the dirty work - gladly. All you have to do is lend your money. If you could spend just one minute in action out on the Atlantic, you wouldn't hesitate about buying bonds."
