The Allied Meeting...

Although a meeting among representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Russia will probably occur, agreement on post-war policies can hardly be reached until the relative strength of the individual powers as well as political conditions in Europe at the moment of the Nazi collapse become clearer. At that time an understanding about post-war policies in Europe and the campaign against Japan may be possible.

Stalin will not likely commit himself to a pact providing for exclusive control of Western and Central Europe, and particularly of the German economy, by American-British authorities. At the same time, Stalin wants reparations from Germany. He, therefore, wants stable economic and political conditions in the industrial areas of Europe; social revolutions throughout Europe would endanger his own political stability. Moreover, the Russian Government can hardly rely on post-war Germany as a principal source of supplies of industrial machinery and technical equipment. Thus Russia's political and economic interests in Europe are conditioned and qualified by the fact that the Russian Government will need large-scale Lend-Lease aid and assistance from the United States in the provision of industrial supplies. Stalin may, therefore, attempt to strengthen his bargaining position and maintain his independence of action.

The defeat of the German armies in Russia would greatly enhance the position of the Russian Government internally and externally. Stalin's policy is no doubt, to push current offensives as much as possible, while at the same time preserving well equipped, mechanized reserves in readiness until the last moment, when the Nazi regime is collapsing and military resistance is crumbling. Such a reserve army certainly exists although very little is known about it. It may push into Germany or into Rumania and southeastern Europe at the end of the war. This will of course depend on political conditions at the time.

RED HERON BIG STAR

Former Pro Finds His Services In Demand on Baseball Diamond and Football Gridiron

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (C)—These autumn days Robert (Red) Heron, well known professional hockey player feels like a vaudeville artist juggling rubber balls and balancing a pole on his chin. But, he says, it's nice work if you can stand the strain.

Robert, in short, is the busiest athlete who ever mixed three sports in one career. Take a recent day in Bob's life as exhibit A. In the afternoon he played his first football game in nine years—with R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. The 25-year old backfielder didn't score but his performance was promising enough to draw polite praise from the critics.

The day was just beginning for Bob when he pulled off his sweater in the dressing room as Hurricanes celebrated a 31-3 victory over Toronto Navy. The next stop was the airport where he boarded an R.C.A.F. plane for London, Ontario. A few hours later he was dressed and on the diamond playing for No. 1 Training Command of the R.C.A.F. against London A. my in the Ontario Baseball Association Senior final.

A Heavy Sagger London won the final in two straight games but LAC Heron distinguished himself at first base and at bat, especially in the first game of the series when he had two triples and a single in five trips.

What are his sports plans when the football season ends? He has none but would "like to play" hockey for a Toronto R.C.A.F. team. He predicts the airmen will have a strong entry in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series this year.

Last season Bob played for Research Colonels, lone civilian entry in the Toronto group of the Senior O.H.A. Colonels finished in the last place but that didn't stop the red-headed centre star from leading the league in scoring.

Surprisingly enough, Bob—who played for Brooklyn Americans in the National Hockey League and Pittsburgh Hornets in the American Hockey League in 1941 and the year before lined up with Toronto Maple Leafs—says he prefers handball to hockey.

But, he says, "I'd like to play professional hockey for one more season after the war."

INVASION ALARM

MARKET RASEN, England (C)—Early one morning the town hall clock at this little Lincolnshire town began to strike the hour and kept on chiming. For a half hour the chimes rang out over the sleepy town. The town's Home Guard, and 2,000 citizens, thinking it was an invasion alarm, turned out. Finally somebody tied up the mechanism, the clock stopped striking and the townfolk went back to bed.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT

Today's column is going to be of the "hatched, matched and dispatched" variety as I have new babies to report and a service wedding. Fortunately it ends there, the "dispatched" item being non-est.

Mrs. Hill-Tout, our hospital visitor for October, gives me the following: that little Joan Yelland, whose mother is a Rupert girl, and whose dad is in the Signal Corps, was born on October 1 and weighed six pounds eight ounces. And Master James Walker, weighing eight pounds fifteen ounces, came into the world a day later, October 2, his proud paternal parent in the navy.

Taking their cue from the woodland setting of their mountain camp, the WD's decorated their recreation hall at group headquarters most beautifully in honor of their first RCAF-WD wedding on Friday, October 8. Keeping to the rustic style with evergreen boughs, ferns and bright berries accentuated by gay floral bouquets given for the occasion by Mrs. Winslow, Mrs. Derry, Mrs. Black and Miss Christel Braun, the hall was a picture of autumnal beauty. The bride was Leading Airwoman Betty of Yorkton, Sask., and the groom Sergeant F. H. Cato of Port William, Ont. The bridesmaid was Sergeant Mickelson (WD) and the groomsmen F-Sergt. Campbell, F-Lt. Springborne, the RCAF padre, officiated at the ceremony and during the signing of the register, LAW M. Rigate, accompanied by Cpl. K. Cournoyer, WD, sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who was given in marriage by Capt. R. Foss, commanding officer of group headquarters, wore her Airforce uniform and carried red roses and white carnations and the bridesmaid, also in uniform, carried yellow and mauve chrysanthemums. The reception was held in rustic style. The toast was given by the best man and responded to by the groom. A three-tiered wedding cake, made by the sergeant cooks, was cut by the bride and groom. Decorations of the recreation hut and sergeants' mess were supervised by Cpl. J. MacFadyen (WD) and the refreshments were in charge of LAW Hagstrom and LAW Scarf. I am sure the young couple, who made history by having the first wedding at group, will long remember the hosts of friends whose whole-hearted efforts went to make their marriage a beautiful and outstanding event and we wish them every happiness.

WORK HOURS spell "Victory"

To supply our men on the fighting fronts, to assist the United Nations and to maintain essential services on the home front, requires every ounce of energy of the Canadian public.

This is total war, with liberty the prize. Canadians realize we can not win that prize without hard, steady work.

Under a recent order, issued in pursuance of National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, thousands of Canadians—employers and employees—are expected to forego some part of their peacetime liberty in regard to employment matters, in order that the Nation's war machine may increase its pace—rather than operate at less than capacity.

In order to conserve the working forces in war industries and essential services,

Employers and employees alike are urged to strike a blow for freedom! Keep production at full capacity!

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR
HUMPHREY MITCHELL, Minister of Labour
A. MacNAMARA, Director, National Selective Service

this order requires that no male employee be released, nor may he separate, from a job in either of the two top labour priorities—"A" and "B"—without first securing special permission from a National Selective Service Officer.

The order bears equally on employer and employee: both are restrained from any wastage of man hours through needless labour turnover.

An employer is obligated to post a notice in the form prescribed, where his plant or undertaking is covered by the order, so that his employees will be informed of the regulations as applying to them.

All are urged to comply in the national interest. Penalties are provided for failure to comply.

Anyone wishing information is requested to enquire at the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.
