Bulletins

MUSSOLINI "THROWN OUT" NEW YORK-Merrill Mueller, National Broadcasting Company broadcaster at Allied headquarters in North Africa, reported Thursday night that the deposed Benito Mussolini "now is a military prisoner in a Rome hotel. He added that Mussolini did not resign but was thrown out by a military coup d'etat. The source of his information was not given.

SUBMARINE LOST LONDON-The Admiralty announces that the submarine HP5 is overdue and presumably lost.

ITALIANS RESTLESS BERNE-Thousands of Italians carrying placards saying "we demand peace" and "we want our sons back" paraded in Milan and Turin Thursday night in spite of military warnings that troops would fire on demonstrators, frontier dispatches said today. The Italian people are, apparently, becoming worried over the continued failure of the new Premier Pietro Badoglio to take steps to secure peace. It is suggested that Badoglio considers the Allied "unconditional surrender" terms too severe.

JAPS BEING BOMBED NEW DELHI - There have been further severe bombings by the British and United States Air Forces of Japanese military targets in Burma.

MORE BOMBS MORE FRIENDS

LONDON, July 30 (P) - "The more bombs fall, the more matey people become," Sir Edward Evans, London Regional Civil Defence Commissioner, said in an address stressing that "the bombs which fell on London were a good thing." After the war there will be less party politics in Britain, he pre-

BOMBERS SINK AXIS SHIP IN MEDITERRANEAN

A pattern of bombs explode about a German supply ship in the Mediterranean headed toward Tunisia to aid beleaguered Axis troops. The vessel was also riddled by machine-gun fire before the bombs dropped by Allied planes sank it. This photo is from News of the Day Newsreel.

SHOWS PANTELLERIA'S UNDERGROUND HANGARS

Wrecked Axis aircraft are pictured in the foreground after the fall of the stepping-stone Italian island of Pantelleria. Most interesting angle of this picture, however, is the view of the underground hangars in the background, which shows that the Axis was prepared for an attack and had fortified the island, although it had not forseen the intensity of the terrific bombardment that was to rain from the skies.
