At Washington Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said that the landing party was in contact with German forces and was making satisfactory progress. He said that as many as fifteen to twenty German divisions may be in Italy, a larger force than any met by the Allies in Tunisia or Sicily.

It was announced that waves of bombers, striking six hours before the armistice with Italy yesterday, had wiped out German military headquarters in Italy with a terrific half-hour bombing of Frascati, 12 miles from Rome.
