

hree of the Many Reasons

THERE ARE a lot of good reasons why Carnation is so widely recommended for bottle-fed babies. Here are just three of the very important ones . . . digestibility, fine food values, and Easier digestibility because of heat-treatment and homogenization; all the fine food value of good, pasteurized milk plus an extra supply of "sunshine" vitamin D; and the complete safety of sterilization.

No matter where you buy Carnation Milk, no matter how long you keep it in the unopened can, even without refrigeration . . . it is always the same, always one of the finest foods for bottlefed babies (and their brothers and sisters and parents, too).
