Britain Misses Churchill . . .

Letters from friends in England indicate that wartime privations are even worse than they were during the war.

Judging by letters and by talks with returning men, there seems to be a growing feeling among many people who voted for the Labor Government that they have made a serious mistake. They are realizing what the loss of statesmen like Churchill, Eden and Lord Woolton means in the decline of national and international leadership. Churchill was a tower of strength and an inspiration to the British people throughout the war and the mistake they made was assuming that they could now forget all about the war and its international consequences and return at once to internal politics. They were misled into believing that the nationalization of the Bank of England and of various industries old at once usher in a new era of social security. Churchill did not promise them this but he did promise practicable reforms and a rebuilding of world trade, and he told them that they must work and sweat as they had done in war if they were to achieve those ends.

But the British people were work- WELL ROUNDED tired and hungry, and too many expected ease and plenty under a so-cialist order. And they are still GIRLS FAVORED hungry and short of clothing.

Many people voted for the Labor Government in the belief that Churchill would "win too easily" and that they wanted to give the Conserva- dust to the boys. This year it'll tives a "jolt." Some who admired Churchill as a war leader were afraid that he might develop into al peacetime dictator if he had too large a majority. Now they realize that he should have been left to "finish the job" so far as the peace settlement is concerned. With Churchill and Roosevelt out of the way, long-legged beauties pasted up Stalin is the sole survivor of the on the walls. They wanted to fall "Big Three" and he is making the in love with the kind of a girl most of the personal prestige and power bestowed upon him as a world war leader.

But whatever may be the expla- preference is by looking at the nation of present conditions in Brit- current cover girls. Since most ain, the pople need more than our prayers or sympathy. They were deeply depressed and disappointed over the United States loan, and they felt that it was a poor reward for all they had suffered in the war. At the outbreak of the War Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared that Canada would "stand at Britain's side" and in this time of economic distress Canada must again go to the aid of the British people. But they won't be the ultra-slim Canadians have prospered in the war, types that have been popular in and they will prosper in the peace by the past. generously supplying the needs of Britain, as well as those of the wantstricken peoples of Europe. Famous Model Man Says Sweet Unsophisticated Type On Way In

NEW YORK-Pin-up and glamor girls are no longer dreambe the sweet unsophisticated girl who'll ring the church bells. And she won't be slim-her body will be well rounded, predicts Harry Conover, agent for models.

Why this sudden change on the romantic front? Harry says: "The boys finally got bored sitting in foxholes and canteens and gazing at the unrealistic they could visualize in the kitchen baking a pie, darning their socks or sitting on the back porch knitting boottees." One way to identify the boys' of them are picked by advertising men who have the male idea of beauty in mind, they select a before-or might meet if they

Harry points to Madelon Mason as being the ideal cover girl for 1946. She is, he says, the wholesome, refreshing type of girl who looks just like the girl next door or down the street.
