BRIDE SHIPS

Halifax to be Busy This Coming Week-end

MONTREAL This week-end, four ships will bring 2,740 overseas dependents of Canadian servicemen and 549 soldiers to Halifax, according to transportation advices issued here today by the Canadian National Railways. To distribute them to their homes in almost every section of Canada, 11 "War Brides" specials and one troop train will be operated over C.N.R. lines from Halifax.

was originally due here tomorrow but, shortly after sailing from Liverpool, she developed engine trouble and had to put into Belfast Lough for repairs. The Scythia is bringing 765 new Canadians, 12 nursing sisters, four medical officers, five V.A. D.'s, and 11 civilians. The war brides will require three C.N.R. special trains, while the other passengers will travel on regular trains.

Next ship to arrive will be the John Sargent, expected later on Saturday with 549 military passengers. The largest number of soldiers, 291, will go to North Bay on C.N.R. special train 2259. the others, including 55 for Toronto, 26 for London, 23 fu. Montreal, 22 for Winnipeg, 18 for Ottawa, 16 for Calgary, 15. each for Regina and Vancouver, 13 for Kingston and seven for Quebec City will all travel on system from Halifax.

On Sunday, the Aquitania will arrive with 879 Army and 283 Air Force dependents. They will require five special trains. Other passengers on the ship will be 134 British service personnel, 100 Ministry of War Transport civil ans, 42 Red Cross, 11 St. John ambulance, and 15 other nursing sisters, four medical officers, two out of Prince Rupert. Royal Netherlands will travel on regular C.N.R. trains.

The last ship, also due on Sunday, is the Letitia. former Canadian mercy ship, which will bring 628 Army and 185 Air Force dependents. Three special trains will be needed to take them to their new houses in various sections of the Dominion. Also included among the Letitia's passengers will be five St. John Ambulance nurses and one Army officer.
