Its Use Would Enliven All of Central British Columbia

(By CLEM RUSSELL)

PRINCE GEORGE -Development of the "Sunset Port" of Prince Rupert as an outlet for produce of basic industries within Central British Columbia and the Peace River Block was advocated here on Wednesday at a clinic of Boards of Trade and Junior Chambers of Com-

Delegates from Prince Rupert, Terrace, Burns Lake, Prince George, McBride and Blue River evolved discussion about membership and an over-all works program.

Alex G. Bowie, businessman of Prince George and Burns Lake, advocated Trade Boards and Jay-Cee's aims at developing Prince Rupert as an export

"It is logical to believe," he said, "that, with the potential market in the Orient and the fine railway grades on Smithers division, we could develop Prince Rupert to where all our other needs, hydro power and population, would fall into line behind the progress we make."

In keeping with the theme of the conference that private enterprise must meet the challenge of its traducers, Mr. Bowie urged a more lively awareness to other than personal business problems.

He quoted Chevrier of Ottawa as saying there are but twenty million tons of shipping in the Peace River.

"Why," he exclaimed, "right now in the Peace River there is two hundred and forty-five million tons of shipping up there, according to figures compiled at Grand Prairie."

He submitted that, were this volume of traffic diverted through Prince Rupert, every community between Blue River and the Pacific port would sustain a life-giving injection of
