TIMBER STRIKE OVER

IT IS GOOD and welcome news that the paralyzing strike in British Columbia's timber industry is over. It lasted more than a month and that was a month too long. It was a ridiculous tie-up which did damage that it will take a long time for the industry and the postwar reconversion economy of the province to recover from.

There is no point in discussing who won or who lost in the dispute or the comparable measure of win or loss. In fact, like the most of strikes, it is questionable if anyone actually won. There was obviously a compromise—a compromise which could just as easily have been reached if both sides had been reasonable and tractable without letting the industry get tied up and the business of the country disrupted.

Meantime, as we have said, there is general gratification that the strike is over and the hope should be that it will be but the forerunner of composure of other industrial disputes which have already been precipitated upon or are threatening industries of the country.

POLITICAL SITUATION

AS LONG AS JOHN HART stays as Premier of British Columbia and leader of the Liberal party in this province there will be little danger of the coalition breaking up. However, it is difficult to foresee what might happen politically in British Columbia should Mr. Hart retire to the Senate as has been suggested.

The new Conservative leader, Herbert Anscomb, has said that he does not favor coalition although he is, no doubt, satisfied with the present government, in which he is first lieutenant to Mr. Hart. He admits that the people desire a continuation of coalition.

There might very well be some sort of a new line-up in provincial politics if Mr. Hart should retire. Even if Mr. Hart should quit, undoubtedly some other good leader would be found upon whom there could be agreement to head a stable, impartial and businesslike government.

LUCKY CANADA

FORTUNATE ARE WE in Canada that we have not been, so far at least, caught in the whirl of inflation which seems to be gaining momentum in the United States and, which if they are not careful over there, may reach or exceed World No. 1 proportions. For the time being, we would say, Canada should be very careful in any further releasing of controls. Fortunately, the present federal government is not one that is prone to unduly listen to irresponsible public clamor.

Let us not be fooled by assumptions that rising production and competition will keep an effective thumb in the inflation dike. While so many strategic raw materials are still in short supply, no amount of increased prices can promote sufficient increased production. Nor will competition count against the present powerful combination of accumulated consumer demand and savings.

GOD SAVE THE KING

WHERE EUROPEAN monarchies have meant tyranny, despotism, oppression, they have disappeared. In Scandinavian countries, Great Britain, and the Netherlands, where popular government holds the reins, royalty remains only as a respected and beloved symbol of authority.

And in those countries there is reason to suppose that it will long be a case of "God Save the King (or Queen)" as the case may be.

HEALTH IN THE OPEN

HEALTH AUTHORITIES urge the importance of getting out of doors early after supper in the summer. "Do anything you like—even if it's only exercising the dog around the block," says an authority. "Do some gardening, walk, play tennis, or anything which will keep you in the fresh air when the weather is fine." For those who are house-bound, sitting by an open window in summer, or on the porch, is also recommended.

RATIONING IN NEW ZEALAND

Plan to Lift Restrictions On Gasoline Supply

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (P)—One of New Zealand's remaining wartime rations is likely to be lifted at the end of June, when the restrictions on gasoline are expected to be raised. Private motorists at present receive only four gallons a month for small cars, and eight gallons for American type cars. Motorists who use their cars for business receive additional allowances. Gas prices are still very high—46 cents to the gallon.

The tire situation is much more serious than gasoline. Private motorists have not been able to buy new tires for five years and only those whose cars are essential for business have been able to get retreads. There is no early prospect of the supply improving.

The other wartime rations remaining in New Zealand are on food and clothing. Meat, butter, sugar and tea are rationed, but in every case the ration is ample for normal needs. The only item of clothing where rationing causes any hardship is silk stockings. No real silk or nylon stockings have been available since early in the war and the supply of artificial silk stockings of good quality is very small. Many other goods, although not rationed, are still in very short supply. It is necessary to stand in long queues to buy cigarettes or tobacco, and whisky and other spirits are only available in very small quantities to favored customers.

Typical of the ingenuity of newspapermen, all four of the Wales daily newspapers, after they had been bombed out, contrived to publish all four editions on equipment built to handle only one.

DEFEAT GARDENS IN SHADOW OF REICHSTAG RUINS—Plowed up by British engines and turned over to Berliners to raise vegetable, this area in front of the Reichstag in Berlin is shared by many families who hope to raise enough food to fend off starvation. One of the problems after potato planting is to keep thieves from stealing the seed potatoes out of the ground.

ORGANIZE GUILD OF WAR WIDOWS

Craft Work Helps to Augment Government Pensions

SYDNEY, Australia. (P)—War widows of Sydney are soon to have a War Widows' Craft Guild, similar to one already established in Melbourne, the object being to enable women to augment their government pensions. The Guild arranges training in useful and profitable craft-work which can be a remunerative part-time job, easily run in conjunction with housekeeping. Other work is being done by the Family Welfare Bureau, which has handled 9,000 cases of family problems during the last five years. It now handles 120 cases a month.

INDIAN NAVY EXPANDS

NEW DELHI (P)—Three cruisers of the famous "Leander" class that defeated the pocket battleship Graf Spee in 1939 are to be acquired by the Royal Indian Navy, with the agreement of His Majesty's government. Indian personnel for manning the warships will be trained in the United Kingdom.
