SHORT SPORT

The Canadian welterweight, Johnny Greco, and the former lightweight champion, Beau Jock have signed contracts for a ten-round welterweight bout at Madison Square Garden on May 31. They fought a ten-round draw in New York last February. Both Jack and Greco are rated among the leading welterweight title contenders.

Coach Jack West of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers told an executive meeting of the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club last night that if the Winnipeg team want the Canadian Rugby title they will need imported players. West said that material must be available if a team wants to win championships. He thinks that local talent is enough to win the western crown but imports are necessary if the club is seeking a Dominion championship.

Officials of the Ontario Athletic Commission have announced that Willie Joyce and Jimmy Hatcher, principals in the main bout at the professional fight show in Toronto Tuesday night will receive only fifty per cent of their purses. The fight was stopped in the sixth round and was declared no contest by the referee, after he had repeatedly warned the fighters to show more action. Only a small crowd was on hand to witness the fight.

Twenty-six years ago when a wrestling match was a whole night's work, champion Joe Stecher and Strangler Lewis writhed for more than three hours before a New York crowd. Stecher on that occasion retained the title of world champion, but in 1928 Lewis took it from him. Nowadays the books don't list professional world's champion wrestlers.

Nine years ago yesterday Winnipeg Monarchs climaxed a spectacular Memorial Cup series at Toronto when they whitewashed Copper Cliff Redmen 7-0. Each of the first three games in the best-of-five series was decided by a lone goal—Redmen taking one and Monarchs two games.

The glamorous Kid McCoy of the boxing ring committed suicide six years ago tonight to end an amazing career in which he was everything from a hobo to a millionaire sportsman, including middleweight boxing champion, movie actor and convict.
