SHORT SPORT

Tony Canzoneri retained his world's lightweight championship at Chicago 15 years ago with a third-round decision over Jack (Kid) Berg, British challenger. It was Berg's first defeat in 27 rounds, but he later lost to Barney Ross, a year before the latter won the welter title in 1933.

KITKATLA — At the Easter sports tournament held here between Kitkatla and Kitimaat, the visitors took first prize in all events. SKATER IN BIG TIME

Mary Kirstine Turns Professional With United States Ice Show

EDMONTON (—First Edmonton skater to enter ice show business as a professional is blond, blue-eyed Mary Kirstine, 18, skating and ballet star of the city's Glenora club and western Ontario skating champion in 1941.

Miss Kirstine has signed a four-year contract with a United States show (Icecapades) and will join it at Atlantic City July 1. Unlike many top-notch performers, she did not go direct from the high chair to skating rinks and ponds but donned the blades for the first time in 1937, and did her first serious skating at the Stratford, Ontario club.

"Norton Waite and Bunty Noble, who turned professional from the Calgary Glencoe skating club, were the two pros who really took me in hand first," she said. The two were professionals at the London, Ontario, club in 1938-39.

But it was Otto Gold, professional at Ottawa's Minto Club, who taught her the most, said Miss Kirstine. "Gold was truly wonderful, and let me tell you that skilful instruction is half the battle."

Johnny Mitchell, former player with the old Calgary Tigers and Winipeg Selkirks professional hockey clubs, now a scout for Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League, spotted Miss Kirstine as potential "big league" material while touring western Canada for his club.

Born in Walkerton, Ontario, Miss Kristine has lived in Edmonton for the last three years, and now is attending Alberta University as a nursing student. She will finish her course before taking up her new career.
