POLICE SEEK MISSING MAN

Provincial police here are searching for a native fisherman named Edward Swanson of Massett, who, they fear, may have fallen overboard from the boat Anthony J. at Metlakatla Saturday night. So far little information as to Swanson's disappearance has come to light and it is not known definitely whether or not he actually did fall overboard. The search was begun Monday afternoon by the police after his friends reported him missing.

The morality of an action depends upon the motive from which we act.—Samuel Johnson.

UNREASONABLE PROPOSAL

OTTAWA—The Steel Company of Canada describes as unreasonable and excessive the proposal of the union for a 15c wage increase. The company feels that 10c would be fair. This was the opinion expressed to the Parliamentary Industrial Relations Committee.

During the Sunday morning sermon a baby began to cry at the top of its voice, and its mother carried it toward the door.

"Stop!" said the minister. "Your baby is not disturbing me."

The mother turned toward the pulpit and addressed the preacher: "Oh, he ain't, ain't he? Well, your disturbin' him!"

"Yes, yes, of course I'm glad to see you—who's your cute friend with the crisp, crunchy, delicious Grape-Nuts Flakes?"

"Ha! Ha!—I fooled you Jim! That's our new cook. She won't serve anything but malty-rich, sweet-as-a-nut Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes for breakfast."

"Well what are we waiting for? Let's get home quick and dig into that giant economy package."

"And don't forget that Grape-Nuts Flakes are made of two grains—wheat and malted barley. They give you carbohydrates for energy, proteins for muscle, phosphorus for teeth and bones, iron for the blood, and other food essentials. They taste wonderful. They're good for you. They're easy to digest."

SPORTCASTERS' STYLES CHANGE

Ted Husing's Retirement Marks the End of An Era In Sports Announcing

By EDGAR SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Retirement this month of Ted Husing as director of sports for the Columbia Broadcasting System and appointment of Red Barber as his successor mark a basic change in sports announcing technique.

Husing, present on radio's behalf at just about every significant athletic event since he joined the net work in 1927, is considered the pioneer of network sports description. His announcing heyday covers the so-called Golden Age of Sport—the era of such titans as Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Big Bill Tilden and Twenty Grand.

He described the events he saw for the sheer drama involved as the greatest man in the world pulverized a baseball, sent his opponent crashing to the canvas or darted elusively through the broken field for a million-dollar touchdown.

Barber, best-known for his World Series broadcasts and for his devotion to the Brooklyn Dodgers, is the product of a new age, when the public as well as the experts tend to take their sports with a grain of salt and the drama of most events is tinged with comic relief.

Where yesterday's announcer preserved comparatively strict standards of English grammar and dictation, today's sportscaster (the word is significant) frequently wanders far afield from the domain of Noah Webster in his search for color. An extreme example is the murderous assault launched against the language daily by Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, the reformed baseball pitcher who tells St. Louis how the Cardinals are doing.

The Husing style is still widely-used and Husing himself will continue to do free-lance work, but his generation of athletics has passed, and with their passing the public is no longer in the mood for unadulterated hero-worship.

Today athletes like Leo Durocher and Jack Dempsey appear on the air as entertainers and Bob Hope is the owner of a baseball club. Sports announcing still brings out the thrills of the everyday athletic picture, but something new in the way of entertainment has been added.

The Daily News is anxious to completely record the arrival of all service men and women returning home from the war. Accordingly, it is requested that information be made available to this office regarding the date of arrival home, the service with which the veteran has been identified, in what theatres of war, if wounded, ill, etc. If inconvenient to call at the office, the information may be written or telephoned in. Pictures would be particularly welcome. Street and Postal addresses and telephone numbers are also requested.

CROWDS COME TO GAY DUBLIN

By JOE DENNIGAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUBLIN (CP)—A huge Douglas aircraft is flying overhead. There is the noise of a Vickers Viking about to land at Collinstown Airport.

This is Dublin, a city or airplanes every few minutes, and of contrasting beauty, slums, squalor and all they bring in their train. But, we are getting on. We are almost in the front rank of Continental capitals.

In the British House of Commons the other day, members were grumbling about the time it takes to get a permit to visit Eire. Normally it takes three weeks, but Home Secretary Chuter Ede promises that there will be a speed-up.

There is plenty of food, drink and entertainment. Food is almost unlimited, provided you can get a hotel room. Drink? All the brands of Scotch you fancy. Jameson whiskey, Powers, Paddy Flaherty, and the finest vintages of Continental wines. You can get them all at half the prices of Britain or Northern Ireland.

Hotels are unable to cope with the demands for rooms. The customers can be seen in all the smart lounge bars, many of them in uniform from the Dominions. Just now, we have a rush of New Zealanders, taking the place of the Australians.

We are a republic. Mr. de Valera said so in no mistakeable terms. But, we recognize our brethren from the other states of the Commonwealth.

Food is Rich

Our food is a trifle rich for newcomers from rationed countries. Hotel managers tell me that they have sometimes to call in the doctor to attend the over-eating guests.

Economists wonder where this orgy of reckless spending is going to lead us. Visitors are spending gaily, and paying us with British pound notes. We have £400,000,000 in the ledgers of the Bank of England, but we cannot buy an extra ounce of tea with it. All this tourist money is just waste paper until Britain recovers herself. Meanwhile, we are doing the best we can. The British have given us enough coal to enable a second train to be run every day and bus services are to be improved.

Dublin lovers may like to know how the old spots are progressing. Well, the Abbey Players are on holiday. Most of their best actors and actresses have been ensnared by J. Arthur Rank, who is making films in Britain, owns flour mills in Ireland, preaches Methodism on Sundays and for a million pounds has bought ninety per cent of our cinemas and theatres. But, the Abbey opens soon with a revival of "Professor Tim."

The Gate? Edwards and MacLiammoir are taking a peep at Paris. The Gaiety, one of theacquisitions of the Rank Empire, is putting on Sean O'Casey's "Red Roses for Me." "Red Roses" was a terrific success in London, but then, we feel that anything can be a success there so long as playgoers remain permanently nine years old.

Davy Byrne's, immortalized by James Joyce in "Ulysses," is a smart lounge bar patronized by the demi-monde. It is all neon lighting and tubular chairs. The Dolphin, despite the demise of the manager, still serves the best steaks after the races.

Gresham Popular

The socially prominent slip into the Gresham for an afternoon sherry. Wynn's is full of cattle dealers and greyhound fanciers. The head waiter says he has his shirt on "Quare Times" for the Greyhound Derby.

At the Shelbourne, where they preserve the mid-Victorian atmosphere, Sir Somebody is always having tea with Lady Somebody Else, but it is all so correct.

Down in Dawson Street, the Royal Hibernian is doing a roaring trade. Its Buttery is full of customers using last year's RAF slang, and the overworked words: "Definitely," "frightfully", positively", "actually", and "beastly" jars on the ears.

In the Kildare Street Club, veterans of Poona now read the "Irish Press" financial notes in preference to those of the London "Times". There is more money to be made on the Dublin Stock Exchange nowadays.

Yes, as an English visitor remarked to Lord Glenavy, Governor of the Bank of Ireland, the other day: "I've come over here, bought a castle and all that, to get away from these damned Socialists on the other side. Under Mr. "de Valley-ra," "Airah" is the only country where a gentleman can live like a gentleman now."

That noise is the British Overseas Airways Anson going to Liverpool.
