Indians and Liquor

If general talk around the city is to be credited, and some rather serious incidents attributable to liquor getting among the natives have occurred to bear the talk out, it is time something was done about tightening up on the situation as regards the supplying of liquor to Indians. We know that it is difficult for the police to obtain convictions in these kind of cases which depend to large extent for evidence upon native informants themselves, who are often unwilling. It is nevertheless serious that there should even be deaths, the underlying cause of which might have been malnutrition in spirits by the poor victims themselves. Certainly, if anything can be done to stop a situation in this regard which is generally said to be deteriorating it should be done.

One thing that might be done would be the restoration of a Dominion police officer attached to the Indian Department such as we formerly had for many years. Sometimes the Indians themselves claimed undue prosecution under such a set-up but, be that as it may, conditions were probably better in those days than they are now.

Emergency in Alaska

Alaska is, apparently, as badly if not worse off than the British Columbia coast in shortage of shipping tonnage. The loss of the steamer Yukon makes the situation even the more serious. Added to that the big liners Aleutian and Columbia, formerly operating to Alaska, are on the Hawaiian run.

The outlook for pleasure travel, or even for business travel, to Alaska, during the coming summer and fall, is far from bright.

To relieve the situation and to obviate a raising of tariffs, Alaskans are urging the government to build new ships and turn them over at half price or thereabouts as Alaska carriers.

Meantime, another means of meeting the situation, temporarily at least, is receiving a large measure of support particularly in south-eastern Alaska, namely the further suspension of the Jones Act which would enable Canadian vessels to help Alaska in its current shipping emergency.

Wrong Symbol Is Best

Now someone discovers that there is no such thing as the United Nations Organization. The San Francisco Charter says just "United Nations." No one seems to know who tacked on the generally accepted Organization. But there is a slight effort afoot to change the designation from U.N.O. to U.N.

We confess an allergy to the current and inevitable alphabetical designation of practically everything. But, if we must choose, we will take U.N.O. in preference to U.N. Certainly the Spanish word for one is a more appropriate symbol for the United Nations' goal than the Anglo-Saxon prefix of negation.

TRYING TO OPEN ROAD

Clearing Snow From Western Part of Prince Rupert Highway

A Public Works Department bulldozer, clearing snow from the Prince Rupert Highway, is approaching the Rainbow Lake summit about 15 miles east of the city with the immediate objective of opening up the road as far as Tye and possibly Telegraph Point, District Engineer J. C. Brady said this morning.

Snow conditions on the highway east of Telegraph Point, particularly at Kwintus, where a 400-foot snowslide has covered the right-of-way, with the momentary possibility of more slides coming down the mountainside, make it doubtful if that part of the road will be cleared in the near future.

However, the department is making progress in clearing the western section, where snow depth ranges from a foot to three feet.

SHARING JOBS

Editor,
Daily News—
It was a good thing to see the picket line in Prince Rupert on Saturday. The Labor-Progressives are doing a fine job in trying to get more work for the dry dock in shipbuilding so the needy may have jobs and men may be able to bring bread to their families. Yet we have a man and his wife, both employed as school teachers, going out on the picket line and asking for work for the unemployed. That's the reason why single women cannot find jobs. We are sharing our food. Let us do the same with our jobs. The school board might set an example.

:: To Our Visitors ::

At five in the morning the moon's still aglow
Looking down on our mountains tinted with snow.
The ocean's a mirror in which he does smile,
I wish you could see it, 't would be worth your while.

So come to Prince Rupert and see for yourself
The wonderful scenery in which we abound;
Don't let anyone tell we're on the shelf,
I heard that expression, but here's what I found:

A nice little city sloping down to the sea
Where people are friendly towards strangers like me.
You'll find you are welcome whenever you come in,
But the way folks razz it, it's really a sin.

We grant you we get lots of rain,
But we can smile as we explain
When others get their frost and ice,
We think the rain is pretty nice.

In summer the days are so long and so bright,
The sun works overtime, late in the night.
It's a beautiful sight as it goes to rest,
Sliding down o'er the mountains away to the west.

Just beyond our harbor you may go for a swim,
Salt Lakes is the place to get vigor and vim;
It's a beautiful spot but a lot we must do
To make it more pleasant for people like you.

As I finish my poem the moon fades away,
And the sun takes its place to brighten the day.
The crows are calling, they tell you 'twill be
A very nice day for you and for me.

Who Wants To Go Back To Candles?

THE ladies sometimes like the dim, flattering light of candles. But most people, even if they could get far greater illumination from candles at far less cost, would prefer electric light.

Considerations of health, comfort, convenience, cleanliness and safety, have become more important to the modern way of life than the factor of cost.

Nevertheless, it costs money to survey new power sites, harness waterfalls, and build transmission lines, so that when you flick a switch or set a thermostat you can be sure of light and heat at your fingertips. Quite possibly a part of your own Life Insurance premium has been invested in the public utilities which render these services.

Government supervision of all such investments safeguards the money laid away by more than four million thrifty policyholders, united for their common security in the great co-operative business of Life Insurance.

25¢ This portion of every dollar invested out of Life Insurance funds helps to finance thousands of building and transportation projects, public utilities, industries, etc., which create employment throughout the country. The remainder is in municipal bonds, farm and town mortgages, etc. In addition, $500,000 is paid out in direct benefits every working day to policyholders or their loved ones.

Goering's Aeronautical Research Plant Undetected by Allies Until End of War

Cleverly hidden from the Allies throughout the war, the Hermann Goering Aeronautical Research Plant was visited by four of the 40 Canadian scientists sent by the Department of Reconstruction to assess the advancement of Germany's scientific research. The four square miles of plant hidden in a forest was found intact by Dr. J. J. Green, Chief Aeronautical Research Engineer of the Air Transport Board. Greatest advances were made by the Germans in V-bombs, high-speed aircraft, rocket power and wind tunnels for testing new designs. When Germany surrendered the above wind tunnel was being constructed by the Nazis in the Otztal Alps. The working section is 26 feet in diameter, corner sections, 74 feet. This 100,000 h.p. tunnel was to be driven by direct water power and speeds equal to that of sound would be possible. Below is the Walther bi-fuel (liquid) rocket unit as used to power the Messerschmitt 163 aircraft.
