Day of Pet-Propelled Racers Still Remote at Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLES, ()-If any of the 200,000 guests the Indianapolis motor speedway is expect ing at its May 30 resumption of the famous 500-mile auto race are planning the trip for a look at jet-propelled race cars, it's definite now that they'll need another reason.

There won't be any jet cars in the race for a number of reasons, and the best of these is that the applications for entrance are in the mails without any arrangements in the rules for these "three or four" jet entries predicted by Eddie Rickenbacker. Rickenbacker made the prediction on several occaions before relinquishing his poition as president of the speedway corporation.

But a more permanent reason cited by Cotton Henning, the naster mechanic of the Mike Boyle racing team, who points ut that better throttling arangements would have to be worked out before a jet-propel- cock joined the London North led car could negotiate the turns at the speedway.

"The jets may have good picko for the straighaways," says Jenning, "but a driver would more than likely be over the wal on a turn before he could throt tle down to a safe speed.

"Jet cars won't work on the peedway for some time-maybe ver. It would be like running ckass in the Kentucky Der-
