

'ROYAL SHADOW' WINS PROMOTION

Inspector J. H. Giles Says Queen "Woman in Many Millions"

LONDON (C)—The Royal Family has lost one of its most faithful "shadows." John Herbert Giles has been promoted chief inspector with the Metropolitan Police.

For years Inspector Giles, a discreetly self-effacing man, fair-haired and moustached, has been a "personal police attendant" responsible for the safety of Royal persons on public occasions. One of his last jobs was to accompany the King and Queen to Khaki University of Canada at Levesden, Hertfordshire.

During his association with royalty, said Inspector Giles, he "never had a moment's trouble," never had to intervene physically between his charges and their admirers, never made an arrest. At 43, with more than two decades police work under his belt, he looks back with pride on four separate spells as a Royal shadow—in 1931-32 with the Duke of Windsor (then Prince of Wales) on his South African tour; in 1934-35 with the King and Queen (as Duke and Duchess of York); in 1936 with the Duke and Duchess of Kent in Germany, Austria and other parts of Europe; and from 1937 until now on general duty with the Royal Family.

"The Queen," he said, "is a woman in a million—in many millions." The Princesses, although they are growing up, are still charming children.

GASOLINE AND THE BIBLE

BLOEMFONTEIN (C)—When a resident in the Winburg district of the Orange Free State who applied for a permit to purchase five gallons of gasoline was informed that the gasoline control was lifted, he appeared very surprised. He told his informant that as he had no wireless and received no newspapers he was unaware of the lifting of the control. He said the only book he read was the Bible.

Nepal Honors Wavell For Indian Service

NEW DELHI (C)—Commanding General Sir Bahadur Shumsher Jung Bahadur Rana recently pinned the Order of the Star of Nepal on the breast of Lord Wavell at a ceremonial parade here. He said he had been commanded by the King of Nepal to present the Order to Lord Wavell and confer on him the rank of honorary general of the Nepalese Army.

This was in recognition of the services rendered by Lord (then Sir Archibald) Wavell as Commander-in-Chief, India, when the Nepalese and Gurkha troops served under him. The number of Nepalese recruits during the Second Great War to the Indian Army alone exceeded 100,000. The total population of Nepal is less than 7,000,000. Nepalese troops won 10 Victoria Crosses during the war.

BRITISH SAYING

GERMANY IN BAD SHAPE

Boys Fight for Cigarette Stubs in Frankfurt Streets

FRANKFURT, Germany, (C)—Here is the face of Germany today—a picture of want and destruction and broken morale.

Boys fight like animals for cigarette stubs and for lumps of coal dropped from trucks.

Long queues wait at the post office to buy stamps—only five to a customer—and at newsstands for the only newspaper in Frankfurt twice a week.

All along the roads pretty fraulein hitchhikers beg lifts; soldiers discourage them by painting "No Darling" just under the windshield of their jeep. Many charcoal gas cars are stalled at the roadside while driver and passengers chop wood.

Slight activity is seen in the fields. Before the plow walks a horse with ribs showing through loose skin; behind it a boy of 12 or a white-haired woman whose sons have not come home—and may never come.

A year's rains have not washed away names of the dead roughly scratched on bricks, sometimes with a dusty wreath of evergreens nearby.

A bride in white steps from a bomb-damaged church amid flattened ruins to set up housekeeping perhaps in a cellar. No one seems to be building anything, or even trying. Frankfurt's main streets have been cleared for traffic. But most of the dust and broken bricks, the twisted iron and powdered rubble, have just been cast up in mounds on the sidewalks.

Thousands Unemployed

A business man said thousands are unemployed in the commercial field.

"Only a few businesses have started again since the war, since lack of materials and official restrictions limit trade," he said. "Most of the men and girls you see tramping the streets are looking for work—but they want office jobs.

"They won't do manual work and they won't help clear up the mess. Out in the country the farmers are worried about labor and are calling for aid."

Some unemployed make a living from scrounging and small-time black marketing, and most profiteer at the expense of their neighbors.

Many Germans still retain a semblance of pride—like the honest artisan who had tears in his eyes as he told me of the beautiful work he used to do before he was drafted into a Hitler war factory. But others show a bad breakdown of morale. Men whine and cringe to the occupation armies and then turn and bully someone weaker. Pleasure-mad frauleins whose men have not come home sell themselves for candy bars.

Noting the sneer on a shopkeeper's face as he waits on a Jew, you can see that beneath it's the same old Germany still.
