Everyone has a Stake in the TEXTILE INDUSTRY

IT'S NOT only that everyone uses cotton goods for clothing and in dozens of articles which they may never think of as containing cotton —such things as garden hose, electric wiring, oilcloth, window shades...

Everyone has a stake in the textile industry because whole Canadian towns depend for employment on textile mills... The millions of dollars paid out every year in wages find their way into the pockets of farmers, fishermen and miners as well as into the hands of grocers, butchers, bakers, railwaymen... in fact everybody benefits.

It is important to every Canadian that these cotton goods are made in Canada by Canadians, and that their wages are spent in Canada.

land Canal district. There is the Big Four, near Stewart, and Salmon Gold, some 20 miles away on the mountains high above Premier, where supplies were taken in with tractors over a glacier and now are being moved in by air. On the Alaska side of the boundary, the Riverside tungsten-lead property is producing with 300 tons to be shipped to Tacoma on the freighter Nootka this week, and other prospects in the Salmon River district—partly in British Columbia and partly in Alaska—are arousing considerable interest.

All this was learned by the Coquitlam's passengers as they chatted with leading citizens of Stewart and nearby Hyder, Alaska, at a reception held aboard the vessel by Union Company executives.

The ship was met by W. R. Tooth, veteran chairman of the village commissioners of Stewart; W. S. Orr, the new government agent; B. C. A. Lees, Bank of Montreal manager; Lewis Behnsen, Crawford Transportation Co., and George Kustas, pioneer transportation man. They were welcomed aboard by Gerold McBean, general manager of Union Steamships.

Subsequently, the passengers visited the town of Stewart and then crossed the boundary to Hyder, to be welcomed by Sid Anderson, commissioner of that village and officer in charge of U.S. Customs. Passing the line, the visitors met Don Norton and Jack Bouzek of the Canadian Customs.

A big slide on the 15-mile road to Premier mine prevented a visit to that settlement, high in the mountains above the Portland Canal.

Enroute north the Coquitlam touched at Port Simpson and Kincolith. Southbound from Alaska the ship returned to Prince Rupert before starting a quick run back to Vancouver.

HIGHER STATUS FOR DOMESTICS

MELBOURNE, Australia, (CP)—An improved status for the domestic worker is the aim of a Melbourne woman, Miss Lilian Foster, who was for many years superintendent of welfare and employment for the New Settlers' League of Victoria.

She believes that more girls and women would choose domestic employment if they could take a course of training at a special hostel, and afterwards receive a diploma which would entitle them to good wages and smart uniforms.

Miss Foster also advocates the establishment of a hostel which would act as a training ground for domestic workers from overseas. During her work with the New Settlers' League she arranged marriages, divorces, compensation for accidents, and practically every kind of welfare service, in addition to securing suitable jobs for the settlers.

During the First Great War Miss Foster went to France as superintendent of nurses' homes for Allied hospitals. Invalided to England, she worked for the Australian Red Cross in First London General Hospital. She returned to France as commandant of a V.A.D. unit, and was mentioned in despatches by Field Marshal Haig. Later she worked among refugees in Constantinople, Lemnos and Tousla (Asia Minor).
