On the B.C. coast eight unions | "For these reasons" the brief sign union shop agreements."

"The presence of non-union men in an industry leaves the door open for the employer to break down union conditions."

The union's request for the right to hold shop steward meetings twice a month on company time is a practice that has been in effect in southern shipyards for years, the brief said.

Mr. McLeod said that it was the contention of the union that, tem. when lay-offs occur, union men should be given preference over non-union men, even if the latter's seniority was greater.

Background of the local union's attempts to secure inclusion of the union shop clause in con- Ideal tract with the Prince Rupert dry dock was given by Angus for MacPhee, former secretary of the Boilermakers' Union, George Babies Stanton, former president of the same union, John McGuire, former secretary of the Machinists' Unuion, and David MacPhee. president of the Marine Workers' and Boilermakers' Industrial Union, an almalgamation of the Boilermakers and Machinists.
