RESIGNS — Among those resigning as teachers in Prince Rupert schools is Bruce Mickleburgh, Grade Six teacher at King Edward School since 1941, who was a candidate of the Labor-Progressive Party in last year's federal and provincial elections. Mr. Mickleburgh is going to Vancouver to take up a position as Associate Editor of the Pacific Tribune, left-wing labor weekly, and to work for the Vancouver City Committee of the L.P.P. His wife, who has taught the last year at Booth Memorial High School, will be leaving with him. They plan on travelling to Vancouver via the interior, hitch-hiking a good deal of the way, and holding public meetings at such points as Burns Lake, Prince George, and Wells.
