As Easy for Visitors to Come Here by Planes Now as By Automobile

Under amended regulations concerning entry of aircraft into British Columbia, tourists may now fly private aircraft for purposes of health or pleasure to the province, land at any customs airport, customs port or airport and remain three months without payment of duty on the plane. Persons contemplating private plane trips to British Columbia are required to advise local customs officers of the time and place of first landing or arrival and the flight may not be started until receipt of the reply which must be carried by the tourist or pilot. On arrival, the owner or pilot shall report inwards to customs and apply for a special permit which shall be surrendered on the final take-off for departure from Canada when the aircraft will be reported outwards and clearance granted. Under the amended regulations planes now enter British Columbia in the same manner as automobiles.

Is Named Delegate To Winnipeg Meet

Desirability of Prince Rupert and Central British Columbia being represented at the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to be held in Winnipeg October 8, 9 and 10 was emphasized at the monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce Monday night. G. A. Hunter, the vice-president of the Chamber, who will be in the East about that time, was asked, if possible, to arrange his trip to be in Winnipeg at that time and agreed to do so. It was left to J. T. Harvey and Mr. Hunter to consider any representations it might be deemed advisable to present to the convention.

MANCHESTER, Eng. © — The three-mile twin tunnels at Woodhead on the L.N.E.R. line to Sheffield are to be relined.

SKEENA QUEEN

As the Skeena Queen to Stewart flew The Angel of Death was one of her crew. Ken Wilson, the pilot, was unaware That an extra passenger was sitting there. She sat beside him all the way When he answered a call that night. He didn't know, as he soared away This was his last flight. A baby lay dying in this great North.

'Twas a call for a mercy flight, Ken Wilson knew this country, Soared o'er it day and night.

But alas! The fog came drifting round, The airmen couldn't see the ground, To make a landing was unwise They circled helpless in the skies.

The Tucson spread her beams of light, Trying to guide them in their flight. To pierce that heavy fog, 'twas vain They disappeared, ne'er heard again.

For days the planes and boats searched on, Hoping they did survive, Praying as they looked for them Some might be alive.

The mother of the baby was found upon the shore, The fishermen had recognized the jacket that she wore.

The Skeena Queen, and gallant crew, Had perished in the night, Out there in fog where none could help them in their plight.

To those with broken hearts today, There isn't much that we can say To ease their sorrows, or their tears, The only healer is God and years.

As they pass on, should we forget? To those brave men we owe a debt, Let's ne'er forget to say a prayer Whenever we see a plane "up there"

And keep in memory all the lads Who "gave" that we might live, Brave men, God rest thy souls, the prayer we give.

Rup-Rec Leaders Training Again

Early interest is being shown in the forthcoming winter season of physical education and recreational activities at the Prince Rupert Civic Centre and on Monday there was a turn-out of 18 for the initial leaders' class. Of these 12 were women and six men, the most of them having taken part in the programs of last winter. An intensive schedule of leaders' training courses has now been instituted in preparation for the resumption of general classes two weeks hence.

Consider Tunnel Under Clyde River

GLASGOW © — The Glasgow project of building a bridge across the Clyde at Finnieston, debated for 40 years, will probably be abandoned in favor of a cross-river tunnel costing more than £3,000,000 ($12,000,000). This is the recommendation of the city's Highways and Planning Committee and the whole council will discuss the matter soon. In 1937 a formal decision was made to build a high-level bridge costing £1,250,000 but the war caused postponement of construction. Some land was acquired, however. The suggestion is that it be used to build new factories.

WAREHOUSE USE URGED

Chamber of Commerce Would Assist Purchasing Interests in Obtaining Concessions

The assistance of the executive of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce is to be offered to any worthy interests who would take over the big waterfront warehouse at Prince Rupert and make fitting use of it in connection with the development of industry here. It was suggested that the Chamber might use its influence in concessions being obtained for the interests that took the establishment over. The matter was left in the hands of the trade and commerce committee.

WOULD AID HAINES PORT

Haines, Alaska, Chamber of Commerce will be communicated with by the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, it was decided at Monday night's meeting of the Prince Rupert Chamber, with a view to the chamber co-operating to resist a customs order, recently reported, whereby commercial shipments through Haines for delivery over the highway from there to central Alaska would be prohibited. Part of the proposed new transportation system involving a ferry service from Prince Rupert to Haines, thereby connecting central Alaska with the Prince Rupert Highway running into this city.

A letter from the secretary of the Haines Chamber of Commerce, read at the meeting Monday night, expressed appreciation at the interest which had been taken by the local Chamber in the Prince Rupert-Haines auto ferry proposal and the question of repairs to the Haines Highway. The local Chamber was also thanked for courtesies extended to M. S. Whittier of Juneau, Haines delegate to the recent Associated Boards of Trade of Central British Columbia convention, while passing through the city.
