SATURDAY SERMON

A THANKSGIVING MEDITATION

By REV. A. F. MACSWEEN, First Presbyterian Church

Psalm 126:26 — He that goeth forth weeping, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

Thanksgiving-day, I fear, if one the solemn truth must touch, is celebrated, not so much to thank the Lord for blessings o'er, as for the sake of getting more!

The poet is very frank, but he is not altogether accurate, for Thanksgiving to some at least has a real and religious meaning, and they find the words of the psalmist more congenial.

A word about the background of the psalm may not be amiss. The Hebrews had fallen upon evil days.

Weakened by internal strife and corruption, they were unable to resist the onrush of a powerful invader, and soon were carried off as slave labor. In exile they struggled to retain their identity, and to preserve their religious concepts and their moral standards. But it was not easy, and their literature reflects their weariness: "by the rivers of Babylon we sat down and wept—how can we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?"

And then, unexpectedly, their hopes were rewarded. Their masters were swept away by the mighty Persian empire, whose king, Darius, promptly issued a decree liberating the slaves and exiles. The relief was so great, and so sudden, that they were astonished. The years of toil and suffering were past, their faith and freedom were restored, and once more they could return to their native land.

"When the Lord turned again the captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream, our mouth was filled with laughter and our tongue with singing." And they reflected on the outcome of the long years now past; "they that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth weeping, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

Harvest thanksgiving is a time for rejoicing. But it is the outcome of a period which may have been very hard and required faith and sacrifice. "I never saw people sowing in tears exactly," writes one author, "but I have often enough known them to do it in fear and distress sufficient to draw a tear from any eye. In seasons of great scarcity the poor peasants part in sorrow with every measure of the precious seed cast into the ground. It is like taking the bread out of the mouths of their children." Yet the harvest they shall reap depends on the quantity and the quality of their sowing. It is always so. He who sows meagerly shall reap a meagre harvest; he who sows sacrificially, weeping, shall come back with rejoicing, bearing his sheaves with him.

For the harvest always comes. "And whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The men who sowed Europe with fire and death are today reaping the bitter fruit. Those who knelt down outside to pray for their recovery. And in every nation on earth today, except Tibet and Afghanistan, men and women are giving thanks to the God who so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, and are learning to walk in the ways of the Prince of Peace.

In our freedom from want and fear we have great cause for thanksgiving. But we must not forget the past, with its record of faith and courage, nor must we lose sight of the future, and of the heights that we shall yet attain to by the grace of God. If the goal seems distant, and the struggle long and grievous, let the message of harvest reassure you: "he that goeth forth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

REV. MR. AALEN AT ST. PAUL'S

Pulpit at St. Paul's Lutheran Church is being filled tomorrow and the following Sunday by Rev. Matthias Aalen, of North Vancouver. Mr. Aalen arrived in the city last week.

Rev. Mr. Aalen is no stranger in Prince Rupert having done war work here after doing seamen's work in England, France and Holland. He accepted a call to go to Vancouver to take over one of the missions established by Rev. A. O. Aasen, formerly of Prince Rupert, in the southern city.

Rev. Mr. Aalen has performed an outstanding piece of work in rebuilding and remodeling a former Methodist church in North Vancouver, and building up a fine Lutheran Sunday School and a sizeable congregation.

1000 WATT — Your Electric Servant

"LET'S BE THANKFUL! MAYBE THE WORLD IS IN AN ATOMIC WHIRL, BUT WE'VE A LOT TO BE THANKFUL FOR..."

This year's harvest promises plenty of food next winter. But whether you're roasting a plump turkey or simmering vegetables, an electric range will do a finer, cleaner job!

Turkey at its best!
Choice, tender white meat — crisply-browned drumsticks . . . Cooked the electric, time-saving way!

NORTHERN BRITISH COLUMBIA POWER COMPANY LIMITED

Dietitians will tell you that little water should be used in cooking vegetables and many other foods, but this requires careful cooking. Electric cooking is thermostatically controlled. There are no sudden flareups or reduction in heat, but steady even cooking. Plan now to buy an electric range or other electric appliances as they become available.
