Means Much New Lighthouse For Rupert

Alaskans More and More Anxious to do Business Here, Says S. C. Thomson

Business people of southeastern Alaska cities are extremely anxious to obtain greater and greater quantities of goods from Prince Rupert, sars S. C. Thomson, local wholesale produce merchant and pioneer in developing this trade for the port, who returned on the Princess OF DEFENCES Louise last evening from a business trip to Ketchikan, Wrangel! and Juneau. The current cutting off of the supply of goods from Seattle to Alaska on account of the tying up of American ships because of the maritime strike has but served to intensify the desire of the Alaskans to trade with this port rather than
