CANADIANS ARE BEST

Good Work of Lorry and Transport Men is Result of Careful Training — Traffic Accidents at Minimum

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, April 1. — It's no exaggeration to say Canadian lorry and transport drivers are the best in Italy. They were carefully trained in England and have kept all their good-driving habits. In the Mediterranean theatre, they have gone back to driving on the right after months on the left in Britain.

Canadian convoys in the war area are neat-looking and fast-moving. Traffic accidents are at a minimum. The drivers are signal-conscious and habitually give the other driver as much room as possible. Whenever a convoy halts, a man leaps out and takes up a station to guide passing traffic. There's a man opposite every vehicle indicating whether the road beyond is clear, if there's traffic approaching from the opposite direction, if the road on is good or bad.

Safety leagues in Canada would take their hats off to Canadian army drivers and their road conduct.

The Canadians salute the British Tommy for his courage and discipline. The Tommies are regarded as men who will tackle anything. They're an easy-going lot which is deceiving and a mild manner which belies their fighting qualities and staying power.

When an important move is under way, the British clamp down a road control system which permits them to move unheard of quantities of motor transport over restricted road facilities.

All around, what the British seem to lack in dash, they make up in patient organization, endurance and inexhaustible pluck.

A soldier has to make the acquaintance of dozens of battle sounds before he can comfortably restrict his ducking to the bare minimum.

Our shellfire and German shellfire each has its own distinctive series of sounds. Shells coming your way or going somebody else's sound differently. The German machine gun can be recognized easily by its rapid chatter. It seems to be about three times as fast as a Bren-gun or a Tommy-gun which also can be identified without difficulty.

The explosion of a German mortar bomb likewise has its individual sound and so have the cough-like muzzle explosions of our mortars. The whine of shrapnel through the air likewise has its own disconcerting note. So have snipers' bullets.

St. Peter's Tea And Sale Success

The Parish Hall at Seal Cove was the gathering place for many ladies of that end of the city on Thursday afternoon and an early spring tea and sale of home cooking held by the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Peter's Anglican Church was, therefore, a very successful event. Mrs. William Garlick, president of the Women's Auxiliary, received the many guests.

The tea tables were attractively adorned with spring flowers. The tea room was in charge of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. E. W. Scott, the wife of the rector.

Booths were attended as follows:

Home Cooking — Mrs. Glen Hebb and Mrs. Smith.

Sewing — Mrs. William Adolph and Mrs. Sievert.

Variety Stall — Mrs. J. W. Moorehouse sr. and Mrs. Gradcock.

Plants — Mrs. G. A. Kelsey, Mrs. A. H. Hill-Tout and Mrs. W. Davidson

14 FIRES IN MARCH

The city fire department answered fourteen calls during March, according to the record kept by Fire Chief H. T. Lock. This brings the total fire calls this year to 32. There were nine calls in February and nine in January.

Greatest fire damage during the month was to the Canadian officers' mess on Second Avenue when $200 damage was inflicted to the interior by a blaze on March 11.

Two false alarms were answered in March.

Confirmation Class Dinner

Members of the confirmation class of St. Paul's Lutheran Church were guests at a dinner party at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Magnus Anderson Friday evening. Following the dinner, the evening was spent playing parlor games which were participated in with great enthusiasm. The pastor concluded with a Bible quiz after which the class sang, "Have Thine Own Way Lord" which they will render following the act of confirmation Sunday morning.

During the evening the class presented Mrs. Anderson with a beautiful bouquet of flowers and Pastor Anderson with a souvenir of Prince Rupert. The confirmation exercises Sunday morning will mark the completion of two years of study under the pastor of the congregation.

The members of the class are Mary Dybhavn, Clifford Knusen, Clarice Johnson, Norman Martinussen, Irene Mostad, I. Greg Nelson, Jean Jensen, Astrid Pedersen, Melvin Sandvar, Myrtle Sather and Freddie Norgaard.
