SINATRA IN MUSIC FILM

Story of Social Hoax, "Higher and Higher" Is Gay Screen Fare.

A synthetic debutante and what happens to her constitute the theme of the musical picture "Higher and Higher" which comes to the Capitol Theatre Monday and Tuesday and introduces Frank Sinatra to screen audiences.

Michele Morgan, who plays the deb, and Jack Haley share starring honors with Sinatra in the gay and tuneful offering, the action of which takes place in a Fifth Avenue mansion owned by a bankrupt piano tycoon whose servants haven't had any wages for months.

Between them they cook up the plan of having the kitchen maid pose as the tycoon's socialite daughter and marry a husband rich enough to pull them all out of their financial hole. Unfortunately, the artificial deb is really in love with the valet (Haley), and this complicates the plot hilariously. Sinatra has the role of a young next-door neighbor who finds himself involved in the romantic aspects of the story, and Leon Erroll heads the featured cast as the rich man.

How the various situations work out, with the kitchen maid and the valet finally finding one another, and Sinatra and a real debutante hitting it off, forms the entertaining climax of the film.

A special feature of the Monday and Tuesday short program is the two reeler "Training Table" describing the scientific diet of the Royal Canadian Air Force.
