DOG FISHING ON ISLANDS IS POOR NOW

SKIDEGATE, Dec. 18—A few boats are still out fishing dogfish, but recent catches have been poor. During the past season some boats operated profitably, but others did not make expenses. A large fleet of beam trawlers operating in the straits during the past season has caused concern among local fishermen. They say that the trawlers destroy all flat fish and crabs with their beam trawls. They also claim that the practice of dumping the dogfish carcasses overboard after the livers have been extracted destroys that area for dogfishing.
