FORMER LOCAL SHIP AT INVASION—One a sleek, swift passenger liner, H.M.C.S. "Prince Henry" is shown here as she was converted to take part in the invasion of France. The long promenade decks where peace-time passengers strolled have been cleared away and in their place are powerful davits supportting assault landing craft. It was from the "Prince Henry" and her sister ship, H.M.C.S. "Prince David" that assault landing craft, manned by Royal Canadian Navy personnel, were launched on "D"-Day to hurl the first wave of Canadian soldiers against the beaches of Normandy. Since that day the two ships have continued to land troops in France and to carry away the wounded and prisoners.

NUTRITION SERVICES—Pensions and Health Department, says that the following letter from a girl in the armed forces contains wisdom for men, women and children on the home front:

"Dear Folks: I'm sure looking forward to my leave—you won't know me when I get there! What I'm really keen about is the difference in my eyes these last few weeks. You know how droopy, watery and sore they always were no matter how much I slept. Since our messing officer gave us a pep-talk we know we have to drink our milk to shake that watery look. My complexion's in the glamour class now, and I give milk a lot of the credit. I'll tell you about eating whole wheat bread and the rest of the foods for health when I see you."

WILD BERRIES—"Can I use wild berries for canning and jam?" is a question that is often asked at this time of year. The Agriculture Department, Consumer Section, says: "Yes, by all means gather the wild berries if they are available." Wild berries are often sweeter than their tame cousins which not only improves the flavor of the jam but is also a sugar saver.

And here's a tip: Pick the berries clean. Don't leave the stems and hulls on because the extra handling required later on tends to soften the berry and cause loss of juice.

GLOSSY FLOORS — To take the backbreak out of washing the kitchen floor—whether of boards or linoleum — the Nutrition Bureau suggests cleaning with a hot solution of two ounces of turpentine and two ounces of vinegar to one quart of water.

PICNIC BASKET—Streamlined picnic lunches which can be carried on the street car by workers taking a capsule holiday are suggested by Dr. L. B. Pett, head of Nutrition Services.

"Try wrapping crisp lettuce in waxed paper, and celery, radishes, whole tomatoes, oranges —they bring health on the march. Hard cooked eggs, cheese, whole wheat bread and oatmeal cookies stick to the ribs for the trek home," he says.

LAKE TROUT with dressing on top, Spencer Method is suggested by The Fisheries Department. Ingredients: two pounds of fillets, one quart of stale bread crumbs for stuffing, one teaspoon mixed poultry spices (thyme, marjoram, summer savory, etc.), ½ cup of colorlessly fried onion, oil or butter to mix dressing, salt and pepper.

Oil a glass or enamel baking dish suitable for table service. Place fillets in the dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Mix the materials for dressing together, then strew them over the top of the fillets one or two inches deep.

Place in hot oven, 500 degrees, for 15 minutes. For the first 10 minutes invert another pan over the fish to prevent the dressing browning too rapidly, removing the cover for the last five minutes. Dressing should be a fine shade of golden brown. Serve, if possible, from the same dish in which it is baked, with Sauce Tartare.

UNCERTAIN TREND

their opponents, Aneurin Bevan. The latter's unwillingness to make an open break with the party is taken by some as an indication of a desire on the part of all elements to keep the party together.

On the Conservative side, the question is less complicated and revolves mainly around leadership. There are divergencies of viewpoint between the "young Tories" who are out for extensive reforms and same of the older men of the party who have the point of view of business.

LEADERSHIP UNQUESTIONED

On all sides Prime Minister Churchill's position as leader of the nation in war is unquestioned. The Conservatives, however, are not sure he ought to remain at the helm even if his health permits after the crisis is over.

Anthony Eden, the foreign secretary, is regarded as a probable successor to Mr. Churchill as Conservative leader and as heir to the headship of the national government, should that combination continue. Mr. Eden's popularity in the country is rated very high.

Sir John Anderson, the chancellor of the exchequer, who has impressed his colleagues with solid administrative ability is favored by many insiders in the party.

Should the Labor ministers elect to remain in the national government and should a split develop in the Labor party as a result the Conservatives might possibly accept Mr. Bevin as prime minister.

In the Labor party itself there are clashes of personality and groups. Two ministers, Morrison and Bevin, because of their wartime jobs, have taken the limelight away from the prewar parliamentary leaders, Clement Atlee, deputy prime minister, and Mr. Greenwood. Opposing the government the leading figures are Aneurin Bevan and Emmanuel Shinwell. In the cabinet, but not a member of the official party, is Sir Stafford Cripps.

Some regard Cripps as a potential leader, one able to unite the official trade union faction represented by Bevin and Morrison with the more independent thinking and radical elements of the party.
