Wood has moved on to Oakland to register for a tournament there starting tomorrow.

Approximately 100,000 sportsmen will be exchanging visits annually under an extensive scheme of the Netherlands Sports Organization which calls for Britain and Holland to exchange sports meetings after the war. It is the largest home-and-away international post-war sports program yet devised. The scheme will take teams of British amateur boxers, footballers, cricketers, swimmers, and others on frequent journeys to Holland for contests with Netherlands clubs. It will bring similar Holland teams to this country for return fixtures. "Throughout the war the Dutch people, especially the young, have had Nazi propaganda pumped into them," said Al Milhado, president of the Netherlands Sports Organization which was set up in London recently. "We aim to make them more British-minded than they have ever been before. Our idea is to run the events on a town-to-town basis." The governments

Basketball Buzz

The Booth Memorial High School girls' basketball team will be trying to gain its fifth successive victory of the season when the Women's League leader tackles the Allies at Seal Cove Thursday night.

With Sadaway and Lowe scouring 29 of their points the downed the Air Force W.D.'s 26 to 24 last week, and if these girls can keep up their keen marksmanship this should prove an exciting game.

After the women's fixture, an Area Basketball League "B" Section clash will find the Air Force and Coast Regiment as opponents.

The C.W.A.C.'s and Mussallem's, who are tied for third place in the girls' race, will break the deadlock at Number Four Group, R.C.A.F., in another engagement. Both teams have a record of two victories and as many defeats.

of Belgium and Czechoslovakia may adopt similar plans. Already, the mayor of Hull and the mayor of Rotterdam have agreed to regular exchanges. The London borough of Willesden will exchange with Utrecht. Negotiations are proceeding for Liverpool to pair with Amsterdam, Sheffield with Einthoven and Croydon with Arnhem.

Praise for English soccer, criticism of Scottish plans and suggested remedies for its revival were made by James Bowie, president of the Scottish Football League and vice-president of the Scottish Football Association, at a special meeting of Scottish League clubs in Glasgow. "England is leading us in a variety of ways," he said. "English play has all the characteristics of the Scottish play we used to know." The meeting resolved that a joint committee be appointed to consider reconstruction of the Scottish game, including cup competitions and the refereeing system.

The question of football boots for the Eighth Army in Italy came up in House of Commons when War Secretary Sir James Grigg said he was aware of a deficiency in the supply of soccer boots and that steps have been taken to remedy the situation. Sir James said that a quantity of sports goods recently went forward to the Eighth Army. His reply came after Henderson Stewart, Scottish Liberal, claimed there was dissatisfaction in the famed Eighth at lack of adequate welfare arrangements for the troops when they were out of the line.

Word comes from India that among new R.C.A.F. arrivals there was WO. Tommy Henderson, who played rugby with the Hamilton Tigers both before and after the First Great War. He is a squadron disciplinarian.

James McDowall, 43, Scottish professional golf champion in 1935, died at Ayr.

The Football Association has accepted an offer from the British community in Argentina to supply playing kit to clubs which have visited there.

A mother who had received a bill from her son in college was complaining about his expenses. "Look," she remarked, "it's the language that costs the most—Scotch, $50."

Llanfairfechan, Wales, @—A 21-foot tide driven by a north-westerly gale pounded the North Wales coast recently. Waves 30 to 40 feet high broke over the promenades of resorts between Rhyll and Llanfairfechan and caused much damage. The worst at Townyn where a gap nearly 20 feet wide was made in the stone and concrete embankment.

Reserve Is Remaining

OTTAWA, Dec. 6 @—It was announced in Ottawa that Canada's reserve army of 100,000 men will remain "in being." There will be no further change in the status of Canada's reserve army, it was stated. It will continue to play the same important role as it did before the war and during the dark days of this war.

The reserve army was formed in the darkest days of the war and was designed to operate as a second line of defence behind the full-time Home Defence Army.

CANDIDATES FILE PAPERS

Nomination papers for candidates on the aldermanic board are being filed intermittently at the office of the city clerk. Candidates who deposited their papers at the city hall Tuesday were Robert McKay, endorsed by the Non-Partisan Association, who was proposed by John E. Erickson and seconded by H. E. Breen; and Harold A. Ponder, Labor Progressive candidate, proposed by Alexander Gomez and seconded by Bruce Mickleburgh.

Get Together On Northern Highway

There seemed to be tacit agreement at Monday night's meeting of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce that, once the best route for a highway to connect central British Columbia with the Alaska Highway had been determined on the basis of fair and competent surveys, all communities should forego entirely local or sectional viewpoints and get together in supporting the early construction of such a link. All things being equal, Prince Rupert was, of course, interested in the most westerly route possible. The matter came up when President W. J. Scott reported on a meeting which had been held with Dewey Bullock of Seattle, proponent of a route from Prince George to Teslin.
